he Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in the City of New York held its Regular Stated Meeting on January 12, 2015 at the Princeton Club, 15 W 43rd Street New York, NY, with the Society's President, John C. Walton, presiding. President Walton presented the speaker for the evening, Rev. Matt Malone, S.J., the Editor in Chief of America Magazine and President of America Media, who reviewed America's coverage of Ireland over the last century.

The Society held its Two Hundred and Thirty First Anniversary Dinner on March 17, 2015 in the Grand Ballroom of the Sheraton New York Hotel and Towers with one thousand two hundred and ninety-nine members and guests in attendance. The ballroom was decorated with the traditional green wall hangings, a large illuminated replica of the membership medallion was positioned on one wall and the Society's historic painting of its patron, Saint Patrick, was positioned above the dais and was flanked by the flags of the United States, Eire, the State of New York, the City of New York and the Vatican City state. Carnations of green and white decorated the tables and boutonnieres were provided for all guests. The President of the Society, former presidents, representatives of other ancient societies, speakers, and other distinguished guests were seated on the dais.

The Glee Club of the Friendly Sons, under the direction of Kevin Faughy, opened the festivities with the traditional singing of "The Hail of the Friendly Sons" and provided entertainment throughout the evening with songs by former president Victor Herbert. President John C. Walton welcomed the members and their guests and introduced Cardinal Timothy Dolan, Archbishop of New York, who offered the Invocation.

After dinner, President Walton offered a response to the first toast "To the President of the United States." Rev. Jenkins toasted, C.S.C., President of the University of Notre Dame responded to the toast “To the Day We Celebrate” and Lou Holtz, former Head Coach at Notre Dame responded to the toast “To the United States.”

At the Regular Stated Meeting held on May 4, 2015, at the Princeton Club, President John C. Walton introduced William Duggan spoke about the honoring of Archbishop Hughes at St. Patrick’s Old Cathedral.

The Annual Meeting of the Society took place on November 16, 2015 at the Princeton Club. The election of officers took place followed by the installation of the new President, Matthew T. McLaughlin. The evening concluded with entertainment from the Glee Club under the direction of Kevin Faughey.

REGULAR STATED MEETING

held at

The Princeton Club

New York, New York

January 12, 2015

---

The Regular Stated Meeting of the Society of the Friendly Sons of Saint Patrick in the City of New York, held on Monday January 12, 2015, at The Princeton Club, 15 West 43rd Street, New York City, was called to order by the President of the Society, John C. Walton.

PRESIDENT JOHN C. WALTON: Gentlemen, I would like to call the meeting to order, and I would ask our Glee Club to open the meeting by singing “The Hail of the Friendly Sons.”

(“The Hail of the Friendly Sons” was performed by the Glee Club.)

PRESIDENT WALTON: Thank you, gentlemen.

I would like to now call upon Monsignor Michael Reid to lead us in grace.

MSGR. MICHAEL REID: Let us pray.

Heavenly Father, we ask you to bless us this evening. Please allow us a night of good cheer, good food, and good friendship amongst our Friendly Sons. We ask you to bless our nation, the United States. We ask you to bless the people of Ireland. We ask all things in the name of Christ, our Lord. Amen.

PRESIDENT WALTON: For those of you who don't know it, Monsignor lives in the quietest place in Brooklyn.

Gentlemen, please be seated. Our formal presentation will begin after dessert. Thank you.

(Dinner was served.)

PRESIDENT WALTON: Gentlemen, can I please have your attention?

I regret to announce that I have to do double duty tonight. Our lead tenor is out with pneumonia, so it was requested that I sing with the Glee Club. I don't know if that's good or bad.

VOICE: Hear! Hear!

PRESIDENT WALTON: I call the meeting formally to order again. I would like to recognize our Secretary, John Coleman, for the purpose of reading the minutes of the November meeting.

MR. JOHN A. COLEMAN, III: Mr. President, I recommend that we dispense with the reading of the minutes and that they be accepted into the record as presented.

PRESIDENT WALTON: Do I hear a motion to that effect?

(A motion to accept the minutes was made and seconded.)

All in favor.

(Chorus of ayes)

Now I recognize our Treasurer, John Sullivan, to give his report.

MR. THOMAS H. SULLIVAN: Thank you, Mr. President, fellow Friendly Sons.

At the time of my last report, I reported that as of October 31, 2014, our cash on hand in our general fund was $69,566. Since that time, our receipts through year-end, 12/31/2014, came to $42,380. I would point out that a quite large portion of that, approximately half of it, was as a result of a gift from a very generous member of the Society.

We also, looking forward to the need for additional liquidity for the charitable grants that are about to be made and also, frankly, for our ongoing operating expenses, transferred the sum of $250,000 from our capital fund into our general fund. That meant that as of the end of the year, our general fund, in cash and input to it, came to $361,946. Expenditures during that period came to $81,918, leaving us with a cash balance as of the end of last year of $280,028.

Similarly, the balance on hand in the capital fund as of December 31, 2014, was $2,416,734.

Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT WALTON: I ask for a motion to accept the Treasurer's report.

(A motion to accept the Treasurer's report was made and seconded.)

All in favor.

(Chorus of ayes)

It's my sad duty now to read the names of members who have passed away since our last meeting, two gentlemen that I knew very well. The first is Ken Hickman, who served on the Committee for Accounts for many years. He was a good friend, from Summit, New Jersey. I attended, on behalf to the Society, his funeral at St. Theresa's in Summit.

The other is Edward P. Donnellan, who, you remember, passed away this summer.

Committees will be appointed to prepare suitable memorials to be published in our yearbook. If you know the deceased members, please contact our Historian, Michael Doyle.

I would now ask you please to rise for a moment of silence for our departed members.

(Moment of silence)

Thank you, gentlemen.

We are a charitable society, and I would now like to recognize John Waldron, who is the Chairman of the Committee on Charity, to give his report. John?

MR. WALDRON: Thank you, Mr. President.

Earlier today, the Committee on Charity, which consists of ten members of the Society who are not officers plus the officers of the Society, met together to discuss possible grants for the 2014-2015 fiscal year. As approved at our November 14 meeting, we were allowed to spend up to $200,000 to be distributed. This year there were requests submitted from fifty-four organizations. Seven were first-time submissions.

As a result of the meeting and our discussions, thirty-six grants are now recommended, totaling $195,000, and there is one pending further investigation. Thirty of these organizations received grants in the 2013-2014 year. There were seven organizations that received grants last year who will not be receiving grants this year.

Once finalized, the checks will be distributed to the respective organizations, prior to March 17, 2015.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT WALTON: I have a bit of new business to present to you, gentlemen. On Tuesday, January 27, the Society will sponsor cocktails at Mutual of America, 320 Park Avenue, as a warm-up for our March 17, 2015, dinner.

I must say again thank you to Mutual of America for allowing us to use your space. If you recall, we had a similar meeting there in 2009.

The reception will take place from 6:00 to 8:00 p.m. and will feature comments on the history of the Society by former President Bob Reilly, a display of some memorabilia of the Society, dating back to our founding in 1784, and a musical interlude by the Glee Club.

Since two of our speakers at the March 17, 2015, dinner have Notre Dame connections — and they are Father John I. Jenkins, the president of Notre Dame University, and the legendary football coach, Lou Holtz — Jim Ryan and I worked with the Notre Dame Alumni Office and their New York Alumni Association to reach out to the donors in the tri-state area to make sure that they wave the flag for the president of their university.

Jack Swarbrick, who is the athletic director for Notre Dame, will be on hand on January 27 to make some remarks about Notre Dame athletics.

The purpose of this meeting is membership and to encourage the purchase of tickets and tables at the Anniversary Dinner, and to assure a warm welcome to Father Jenkins and Coach Holtz.

I must say, if you have a prospective member, a son, a nephew, whom you would like to introduce for membership of the Society, please bring them along. Let Jackie McCarthy know, because we are pretty limited in terms of the number of people that we can host at the dinner.

Now I would like to introduce our dinner speaker this evening. I'm very honored that Father Matt Malone consented to be our speaker. I had lunch with Father Malone this summer, and he informed me of the great wealth of information that they had regarding the period of the founding of America magazine, in 1909, through the period of the Civil War — communications with the Irish Jesuits and the New York Jesuits and the Boston Jesuits, during that time of intense turmoil in Ireland.

Father Malone grew up in Cape Cod and attended the University of Massachusetts, earning a degree in history (cum laude). He holds a master of arts from Fordham University, a bachelor of divinity from the University of London, and a baccalaureate in sacred theology (summa cum laude, with the congratulations of the Board of Examiners) from the Catholic University of Louvain, the finishing school for Jesuit philosophers and theologians.

Father Malone is also a founding member of REMUS, which is Religion, Mimesis and Society, an interdisciplinary research group at Heythrop College dedicated to the thought of René Girard. He is a member of the Colloquium on Violence and Religion.

Being the fifth of six children, he probably became more accustomed to taking orders than receiving them. Indeed, in June of 2012, he received the Sacrament of Holy Orders at Fordham University Chapel, with the honorary member of the Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick Edward Cardinal Egan presiding.

Father Malone is the youngest living person to have been named editor of America and has challenged the organization to become ever more effective in reaching out to Catholics and Christians of all stripes.

I must say, my friend Tom Corrigan drove here from Cleveland to hear Father Malone. He may get the award for longest distance traveled. As Tom can recount, my conversations with the Jesuits usually started out with, “You can do better, Mr. Walton.” (Laughter)

Instead, I hope Father Malone will relate the work that America is doing to publish the writings of the Irish and American Jesuits at the time of America’s founding in 1919, during the Civil War, and other comments he wants to make regarding the mission of America Foundation.

Father Malone?

FATHER MATT MALONE: Is there absolutely nothing going on in Cleveland?

It's a great pleasure for me to be with you this evening. I thank you for this very kind invitation to spend a few moments with you.

As Jack said, the occasion for my presence at these proceedings is the forthcoming publication of a book called The Troubles in America, which is a collection of essays from the past century about the Irish Question, so-called, essays that have been published in America.

For those of you who don't know, America is the leading national Catholic weekly magazine in the United States. I feel obliged as a priest to tell you that if you do not know that, it is a venial sin. Of course, it's a mortal sin to deny it, maybe a venial sin not to know it.

By the official count, I am the fourteenth editor-in-chief of America since we started publishing in 1909. Any of you who have ever had the good fortune, perhaps, of being educated by the Jesuits —

(Applause)

— you know that while we are occasionally in error, we are never in doubt. (Laughter)

Five of my thirteen predecessors were fired for being insufficiently modest in their opinions. Some of those opinions actually include the following.

In the very first issue of the magazine in 1909, a report on the recent Italian elections said that “recent elections demonstrate that the Italian people are unfit for the use of the ballot.” That was 1909, by the way.

Italians, of course, were not the only group to be subjected to the essentialist caricatures of some of these early Jesuits. A quarter century later, G.K. Chesterton, who was a columnist for America magazine, said, “The Englishman always says exactly what he means or just a little less than what he means. The Frenchman says so exactly the opposite of what he means that it seems to have more exactitude than the other. He excels in that inversion of the important and the unimportant which has often made French wit seem to dunces more mystifying than mysticism.”

Then, of course, there was in the twentieth century our issue in March 1971, in which the editors praised “the common-sense voice” of General Idi Amin of Uganda and later on praised Robert Mugabe of Zimbabwe as “the very essence of reassurance and conciliator.”

You must take with a grain of salt — the great spice of Irish cuisine — you must take with a grain of salt anything the editors of America had to say — well, at that time, really about anything, but, assuredly, about the Irish Question.

On my own part, when it comes to what America has historically referred to as the Irish Question, I will admit that I am more than a little biased. I am 100 percent Irish by blood. My father was a fireman, so that counts. My mother used to burn the pot roast.

You can imagine, then, how it was one of the great joys and highlights of my life when I got to preach at St. Patrick’s Cathedral on St. Patrick’s Day a year ago. I was also mindful that my presence there that day involved an act of faith on the part of Cardinal Dolan, for if this papacy has taught us anything, it is that you can never predict what a Jesuit is going to say. And my own dear father, who was there for the mass, had actually darkened the door of a church for this occasion. He was overcome with sentiment and shed a tear, in full view of the mayor of New York, the Irish prime minister, but, worst of all in his opinion, the fire commissioner.

When I try to count back through my predecessors as editor-in-chief, I figure just over three-fourths of them were Irish by descent. When I made the list, obviously, I eliminated obvious Italian names like Tierney and O’Hare. But even those editors were always great sympathizers with the cause of Irish independence and great believers in the destiny of the Irish people. In fact, a story from the history of America magazine will perhaps demonstrate this point.

Those among you who are the true historians of the struggle for independence will recall the time when Eamon de Valera set sail for the United States to go on what we might call a kind of consciousness-raising tour of the United States for the Irish cause. The British were intent on capturing him as a bandit, or at least blocking him from the American shores. They made several attempts to intercept the ship during the Atlantic crossing. Once they had failed in that merry chase, they made clear to the American government that they would view any honor offered to de Valera while he was in the United States as an insult of no minor significance.

The editor-in-chief of America in those days was a Jesuit named Richard Tierney, who was a formidable character. He was built like a Buick and yet still carried his own self-importance as though afraid of breaking it. You had the feeling that, as one of his colleagues said, he would have been either an effete Jesuit intellectual or a dockworker, but nothing in between. Luckily for us, Father Tierney chose the former course.

At the time of de Valera's visit, Tierney was already in hot water with the U.S. government. During World War I, his anti-British rhetoric had led the U.S. government to put America magazine on a list of journals suspected of seditious activity. After the war had ended, when Woodrow Wilson refused to endorse the cause of Irish independence, Father Tierney publicly accused him of violating his own stated principles of self-determination for all peoples. The editors actually never warmed to Woodrow Wilson, though they were Democrats, especially since Wilson had expelled Eugene O'Neill from Princeton for the petty crimes of drunkenness and vandalism. Woodrow Wilson kind of had a "broken windows" approach to lawbreaking, I guess.

The point is that Tierney was not popular with the political classes, and when the secular press reported that Eamon de Valera was to be feted by the Jesuits at the headquarters of America magazine and a dinner was to be held in his honor, there was a backlash. The British did not think that this was such a good idea. In fact, the British government forbade distribution of America magazine on Irish shores and confiscated every extant copy of America magazine in Dublin.

But Father Tierney and the other editors were wise men. Some might say they were downright Jesuitical. The British did not want the Jesuits to host de Valera for dinner, for that would be too great an honor. So Father Tierney and the other Jesuits did not offer Mr. de Valera dinner. They offered him, instead, a modest reception, one that took place in the dining room, with some very heavy hors d'oeuvres that were served in multiple courses and paired with wines. There were Irish musicians playing rebel songs, and there was Irish Republican signage and decorations everywhere. At the conclusion of the evening, reported Father Tierney in his memoir, all agreed that it was the most delicious non-dinner an Irishman had ever enjoyed.

That might tell you something about the magazine's sympathies when it came to the Irish Question, but there are several other interesting things to note when dealing with the literally hundreds of articles the magazine published between 1910 and 1930 on Ireland or the Irish Question. I'll mention just three. I, of course, will not rehearse everything that we have said about Ireland because that would bore you to death, and my father said that there were really only two sins. One was to be cheap and the other was to be boring, and they usually go together. Since I'm obviously not picking up the check, I wouldn't want to risk boring you.

I think there are really three things when we look back at our coverage of this question in America magazine.

The first is that we forget in our own time that even if things were not as bad as they were in days previously, say during the famine or in other periods of Irish history, the country was still terribly poor in those years. This was something that America returned to time and again. Eight hundred years of occupation can't be undone in just a few decades. As you know, many Irish were still leaving the country to try to make a go of it overseas. The country was rural, the country was impoverished, and a significant portion of the country was living in the Bronx. (Laughter)

Seriously, when one reads these articles, one is reminded that this was a time when subsistence or something slightly above it was all that an average Irishman could hope for. So an affinity for the working man, for the downtrodden, for the person who is trying to play by the rules and make the most of his life — that became a hallmark of America's editorial policy, one which you would find today in our pages.

The second thing that we notice is the close connection, obviously, between faith and Irish culture. The Irish experience has been forged in a crucible of hardship and war. For the Irish people, the cross of Jesus Christ was at the center of that history. For centuries, Ireland united her struggle to the cross of Our Lord and drew from his passion the strength and the courage and the hope to endure her trial. Downtrodden and alienated from herself, Ireland placed her desperate hope in the crucified one, the stone that the builders had rejected who had become cornerstone.

As one America editorial said, “Thus, with their eyes firmly fixed on the hope of heaven, a long-suffering people came to believe in the promise of a new earth,” and they set sail for this city, which they would transform into an unprecedented center of apostolic activity, because it was here from New York that the church would advance across the continent. Everywhere that the church advanced, the Irish followed, founding parishes and schools and hospitals and orphanages and colleges and sodalities, founding America magazine. This was a new evangelization for a new world. And here, in the land of the free, the stones that the builders had rejected became the living stones of a new church.

We hear so much these days about the deChristianization of Ireland and of Europe or the way that American Catholics think and act much the same as other Americans. We forget that there was a time when most Irish in the United States or back home explicitly equated the Catholic faith with the Irish culture. And note that even those Irish writers who abandoned the faith or the country, even some of them that appeared in America, like Joyce or Beckett or others who went to Paris or elsewhere, still spent the rest of their lives writing about Irish culture and about Irish Catholic faith.

In America’s articles, one senses that the Catholic nature of Ireland is a given. Indeed, the Protestant land-owning class in our early years was largely ignored or seen as just a British fifth column, but not as really, truly Irish. And that was unfair and it was unfortunate. It was an unfortunate bias, but not a singularly impressive one, considering the context of fear and repression and multiple biases in which it was formed.

The third thing to notice, I think, is something that many of us still feel today — that I do, that my father did from the front pew of St. Patrick’s Cathedral on March 17 — and that is this terrible nostalgia for the old country, for home. It reminds us that in its truest meaning, which comes from the Greek, “nostalgia” does not mean sentimentality for the past, but a longing for a place and a time — the old country, the old sod.

So many articles and editorials and mentions of Ireland in the pages of America made it clear that while Irish-Americans had bid farewell to the old country, they had actually never really left it behind, and not just because they were always getting letters asking if maybe the American cousin couldn’t spare a few quid.

But even the Troubles seem more and more a thing of the past. With Ireland part of the EU and sharing the euro, with the ease of travel on the continent, and even back and forth to the States, what is most interesting is to go back to the stories of those years in the early life of America magazine, still the early life of America itself — and, remember, the magazine was only founded seven years before the Easter Rising — and to hear firsthand the stories that today might only be echoes.

One of America's columnists returned to Ireland last year — his sister lives in Dublin — and found an interesting thing carved into a doorway at the prison where the planners of the Easter Rising were kept and then later executed. Someone had written there, “Beware of the risen people, ye that have harried and held.”

I'm sure that many of you know where that comes from. It's part of two lines from a poem written by Patrick Pearse, who was held prisoner in that same place and was executed in the stone-breaker's yard. The larger poem is called “The Rebel.” In it, Pearse speaks in exactly the tones I mentioned earlier, the marriage of love for the faith and love for the Irish people, the way a people hated by their masters still knew themselves somehow beloved by God.

If you will permit me, I would like to read just a few lines from that poem, which we were pleased to publish in America. They capture the spirit of the magazine's approach to the Irish Question, a spirit you shall encounter yourself when you buy and read the book, which you undoubtedly will.

“I am come of the seed of the people, the people that sorrow;
Who have no treasure but hope,
No riches laid up but a memory of an ancient glory
My mother bore me in bondage, in bondage my mother was born,
I am the blood of serfs...
I that have a soul greater than the souls of my people's masters,
I that have vision and prophecy, and the gift of fiery speech,
I that have spoken with God on the top of his holy hill.
And because I am of the people, I understand the people.
I am sorrowful with their sorrow, I am hungry with their desire...
And now I speak, being full of vision;
I speak to my people, and I speak in my people's name to

The masters of my people;
I say to my people that they are holy,
That they are august despite their chains,
That they are greater than those that hold them
And stronger and purer,
That they have but need of courage, and to call on the name of their God,
God the unforgetting, the dear God who loves the people
For whom he died naked, suffering shame.
And I say to my people's masters: Beware
Beware of the thing that is coming, beware of the risen people Who shall take what ye would not give."

May God bless Ireland and may God bless the United States of America.

(Applause)

PRESIDENT WALTON: Father Malone, thank you very much. We appreciate your presence greatly.

Now I would like to turn the meeting over to Kevin Faughey.
But, first, I know that there are some members who have to catch trains and might want to head out before the Glee Club gives a brief interlude of music. If you have to get a train, I'll give you about thirty seconds.

Kevin?

MR. KEVIN FAUGHEY: Good evening, gentlemen.

For this evening's program, we will be singing "Toyland," written by Victor Herbert, who was the founder of the Glee Club.
The next composition the Glee Club will sing will be "Ding Dong Merrily on High," by David Willcocks. Then we will sing a Christmas carol medley, "We Three Kings," "God Rest Ye Merry, Gentlemen," "Good Christian Men, Rejoice," and our soloist for the evening, Rudy Albert, will sing "O Holy Night." Then we end with the "Hallelujah Chorus."

(Glee Club Performance)

MR. FAUGHEY: One very brief announcement before we sing the National Anthem. I just want to let all of you know we are looking for members. Unfortunately, a lot of our members have gotten older. Some are sick. They may have issues so that they can't make it as often as they would like. Please, if you know anybody who you think would be good for us, if you yourself want to come and join us, call, speak to one of the men, whatever. We would love to have you with us.

With that, now I guess we will sing the National Anthem.

PRESIDENT WALTON: Yes. Gentlemen, please remain up-standing for the singing of the National Anthem.

(Singing of the National Anthem)

PRESIDENT WALTON: Gentlemen, this concludes our meeting. Please get home safely. I look forward to seeing many of you on January 27. Goodnight and God bless.

Anniversary Dinner
held at
The Sheraton New York Hotel & Towers
New York, New York
March 17, 2015

---

(Irish Marching Band performance)

PRESIDENT JOHN C. WALTON: Gentlemen, welcome to the 231st Anniversary Dinner of the Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in the City of New York.

I invite you to sing with our Glee Club “The Hail of the Friendly Sons.”

Kevin?

(“The Hail of the Friendly Sons” was performed by the Glee Club.)

PRESIDENT WALTON: Thank you, Glee Club.

Gentlemen, six years before the founding of our Society, on March 17, 1778, at Valley Forge, General George Washington ordered a toast by his men to each of the thirteen colonies. The troops, thereby lubricated, were instructed to go forth in battle singing “O’Donnell Aboo.” Those were difficult times. But the tradition of such toasts is kept brilliantly alive by the Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in the City of New York.

When Patrick lit the first new fire of Easter across the valley from Tara, the wizard ran to the king and said, “Unless this fire is quenched tonight when it is lit, it will not be quenched until Doomsday.” Gentlemen, we also keep that fire alive.

I would like to call to the podium His Eminence Timothy Cardinal Dolan for our invocation, after which I ask you to remain upstanding.

ARCHBISHOP TIMOTHY M. DOLAN: In the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, we thank you Lord for the light of faith, we thank you for our Irish heritage and culture, we thank you for American citizenship, we thank you for the joy that we share and the dreams that we have, we thank you for those who have been part of this great gathering in the past and have now passed over unto You. Especially, we think of Cardinal Edward Egan and Father Theodore Hesburgh; we thank you for this great city of New York, and we thank you especially for the saint whose has brought us together in friendship and unity and joy and promise and hope this evening, St. Patrick. Through his intercession may he bless our families, may he bless Ireland, may he bless our intentions, may he bless this city that we call our earthly home. We make this prayer through his powerful intercession as well as through that of Our Lady Queen of Ireland, the Queen of Peace, the Golden Rose, as we pray:

Bless us, O Lord, in these thy gifts which we are about to receive from thy bounty through Christ Our Lord. Amen. In the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, Amen.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT WALTON: Gentlemen, please remain upstanding.

Two weeks ago, the Society lost a good friend, supporter, and distinguished Honorary Member, His Eminence Edward Cardinal Egan. It is fitting that he and other recently departed members of the Society will celebrate this feast of our patron saint from his perch in heaven.

I would ask you to join me in a moment of silent prayer in tribute to Cardinal Egan.

(Moment of silence observed)

Thank you.

I would like to extend a special welcome to the dais to two new attendees this year: the new Consul-General Ambassador from the Republic of Ireland, The Honorable Barbara Jones; and I also want to welcome Maureen Scannell Bateman of the American-Irish Historical Society, whose father was a distinguished member of the Friendly Sons.

Our speakers this evening are Father John Jenkins, the President of the University of Notre Dame, and former coach of the Fighting Irish, Lou Holtz.

Gentlemen, you may now take your seats as dinner is served.

(Dinner was served.)

(Glee Club performance)

PRESIDENT WALTON: Gentlemen and ladies, I would like to call to order this, the 231st Anniversary Dinner of the Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in the City of New York.

I would like to thank our various committees which have performed so admirably in the past year, in particular, Peter McGuire and the Board of Stewards for the attention they bring to the dinner preparations.

As the audience is aware, the purpose of the Society is to provide aid to indigent Irishmen. When the young junior senator from the State of Massachusetts by the name Kennedy addressed our Society, he stated that it is becoming an increasingly difficult task to find indigent Irishmen. Gentlemen, let me assure you the indigent Irishmen and Sisters of Charity have no difficulty in finding us or our Charities Committee Chairman John Waldron.

I am particularly thankful to Jackie McCarthy, who has the unique knack of anticipating the needs of your President and an encyclopedic knowledge of our rubrics and membership lists.

A special note of thanks to Aaron Watford, of the Venable law firm, who parachuted himself in before the dinner to help Jackie deal with a computer malfunction.

We are very happy to have with us the Friendly Sons Glee Club, celebrating their 102nd year in existence. The Glee Club is ably led by Kevin Faughey and accompanied by David Ralph.

I'd also like to personally thank John Shanahan, who, from Dublin, helped us arrange participation of Kilbeggan Distillery in the whiskey-tasting event which the Society sponsored in conjunction with the St. George's, St. David's, and St. Andrew's societies. This is an event which the membership liked a lot and we will repeat.

And lastly, thanks to the Friendly Sons members and events manager of the Sheraton, Ed Kane, and the wait staff who have worked so hard to pull this together.

The time comes for the first of our traditional toasts. May it please our speakers, Father John Jenkins and Coach Holtz; His Eminence Timothy Cardinal Dolan; Ambassador-General Jones; Dr. O'Connell of Manhattan College; Father Richard Warner, Superior General of the Congregation of the Holy Cross; Police Commissioner The Honorable Bill Bratton and former Police Commissioner and Honorable Member of the Society Ray Kelly; and to the representatives of other venerable societies, formers presidents of the Society here on the dais, members, sons, family, friends of the Friendly Sons, from border to border and coast to coast and all the ships at sea.

But whereof the Howard Beach Italian? Gentlemen, the Society did receive a letter from Governor Cuomo expressing his regrets and stating that he couldn't attend. He indicated that the family is abstaining from comedy this Lent.

Gentlemen, please charge your glasses and be upstanding.

To the President of the United States.

(The toast was given.)

Please be seated.

I come bearing an apology to Former President Tom O'Brien and the team of attorneys who amended the Bylaws of the Society in 2010. At my insistence, the phrase "Irish race" was deleted and replaced with the term "Irish peoples." Perhaps I should have requested the "consubstantial Irish peoples."

But recent archeological and ethnographic research has demonstrated that the Irish people are in fact a distinct race and, except for the ugly ones, the noblest and most handsome people of all the Earth.

The earliest human remains and elements of domesticity are to be found near Sligo, in the west of Ireland, from almost 5,000 years before the birth of Christ. These Paleolithic artifacts predate those of Britain and Scotland by hundreds of years — proof that the Irish were civilized before the Brits.

I am reminded by Father Gannon that "the barbarians of Britain were still living on acorns when all of Roscommon had the gout." (Laughter)

Now, gentlemen, it is said that the Irish are a Celtic people, that our Neolithic and Bronze Age progenitors were overrun by the Celtoi as that swarthy bunch made their way westward from Anatolia through Austria and into western France.

Something differently, however: the latter has it that the Irish of the Bronze Age adapted the Celtic Nomen so that they could pass when amongst their continental brethren, the Poles, at Lahinch and Ballybunion. If the Irish were really Celtic, the ethnologists would expect to see traces of their present modern-day habits, ingrained superstitions, and religious practices among the residents of Cornwall and Brittany. But an Irishman would never look for kindling wood in a graveyard, for to remove a fallen tree limb is to bring upon oneself imminent bad luck. The Frenchman has no such fear, for they have been laicized.

An Irishman will tip his hat to a rustling pile of leaves, lest the little people perform some mischief upon him.

And finally, the Britain (Britons?). Who among the Britain would have a scapula of the Sacred Heart pinned to his BVDs? (Laughter)

Gentlemen, the ineluctable truth is that the Irish civilization subsumed the Celts.

Perhaps the greatest gift of the Hibernian Irish to the Celtic Caledonians arises from the tools used in the tilling of the land, for, unlike other cultures, our Neolithic forbearers did not use the shovel or pike, but rather a long-handled spade which gently turned the sod so that the spud could be placed without damage. Today, several millennia later, on those days when the sun is low in the western sky, one can see the lazy beds, as they're called, nearby the shores of County Mayo. Quod erat demonstrandum, the Irish invented the divot millennia before the Scots had invented the game of golf.

Moreover, it was the cudgel of the Irish Saint Columba used to subjugate the Picts to Christianity and, only 1,000 years later, adapted by the Scots and renamed the mashie or niblick, as course conditions warranted.

The game of golf, though, brings me full circle to my response to the toast which I am obligated to respond. In terms of rounds of golf per day in the Oval Office, Mr. Obama cannot hold a candle to the record of Dwight Eisenhower. Ike was such a fanatic that he had a putting green built on the White House lawn and would practice every morning. If the dew lay too heavily on the turf, he would send out aides to wick away the offending moisture with fly fishing tackle.

Now, can you imagine the incumbent, President Obama, getting on the hoot and howler down to the White House canteen and saying, “Valerie or Josh, can you go out there and squeegee the putting green? I’d like to get a practice round in before the Dalai Lama arrives.”

Despite this avuncular image, and soothed by the mists of time, Ike was a man with an enormous temper, well concealed in public but of Vesuvian intensity in private. Dulles, in particular, could see it coming when Ike’s bald head would turn bright red while the president outwardly managed a tight smile, this while being berated by Lyndon Johnson over the missile gap or by Khrushchev at the 1960 Paris Summit.

While it is not commonly known about Ike, he was a brilliant card shark at West Point, so much so that he would routinely run the table on his fellow plebes and he had to stop playing. He also had an uncanny ability to see into the minds of his opponents. Yet, as I mentioned to Coach Holtz, he was also known to take more than his occasional mulligan to improve his lie and fiddle with his scorecard.

A book on Eisenhower reveals that this president was a purposeful enigma — silent, cryptic, nonanswers. These belie the fact that his hand was on the scabbard at all times, and everyone knew it.

Gentlemen and ladies, in honor of the President, the job is the hardest in the world. Perhaps twenty-five or fifty years from now we will fully understand the challenges which have been stared down in our own present time. I will say the economy is growing, the financial system appears to have less risk, and meaningful steps have been taken to expand health coverage, and the issues of undocumented participants in our economic and social systems are being addressed. While I will complain of taxes with my last dying breath, the truth of the matter is that for many sectors of our society things are getting better.

Now, gentlemen, in conclusion, let me propose another toast. Gentlemen, please charge your glasses and be upstanding.

Gentlemen, “To The Day We Celebrate.”

(The toast was given.)

It gives me great pleasure to introduce Father Jenkins, the Congregation of Holy Cross, to respond to the toast To The Day We Celebrate.

Father Jenkins is the second president of the University of Notre Dame to address our Society, the last being Father Cavanaugh in 1918. Long these ninety-seven years the Domers have been wandering in the wilderness of New York City, in spite of the fact that no group will fill the Garden faster than their legitimate and subway alumni.

While I no longer have deep and discreet sources within the Jesuit community, Boris and Natasha having been exiled to Boston College several years ago, word has come my way that the threat to the Jesuit hegemon among university dinner speakers has not gone without notice. You must realize, Father Jenkins, that when Lyndon Johnson addressed our Society in 1964, Father Robert I. Gannon thought the remarks commenting upon the Great Society had all to do with the Jesuits.

Father Jenkins, I welcome you to the dais.

(Glee Club performed “Notre Dame Victory March”)

REV. JOHN I. JENKINS: Thank you, President Walton, for that wonderful welcome. Thanks to the Glee Club for singing the fight song. Thanks to all of you for being here.

I’m tremendously honored to be here tonight. I feel tremendously important being with such a distinguished group here on this dais.

Someone asked me, however, why wasn’t the Mayor here tonight. (Laughter)

I said it was because we started on time. (Laughter)

It’s a wonderful day, a day we celebrate — unless you’re the Mayor (Laughter). It is, I’m told, his least favorite month. He even canceled his subscription to Parade magazine.

But nevertheless, we have a distinguished group here. One of the great blessings I have tonight is that I speak before Lou Holtz, who is one of the best speakers I know.

You know, there are many challenges to being a Catholic university president, and I could stand up here and tell you all the challenges I face, all the problems I have. But, as Lou so wisely said, “You know, when you tell people your problems, half of them don’t care and half of them are glad you have them.” (Laughter)

I'm here with Commissioner Bratton. I know you have some problems as well. You know, the NYPD and the University of Notre Dame have at least one thing in common: We both get sued by the ACLU. (Laughter) Can you believe they wanted us to change our name from "the Fighting Irish" to "the willing to negotiate unless physically provoked Irish"? (Laughter)

Commissioner, we are committed at Notre Dame to the cause of justice. So I must raise with you a very serious issue. It has been over a year — over a year — and you have yet to identify a suspect in the death of the Staten Island groundhog. (Laughter)

No person of interest? No one, really?

As I would have said to Mayor de Blasio, had he been here tonight, I'm a Catholic priest, I'm in the forgiveness business, and I will be available for confession after this event. (Laughter)

I'm also honored to share this dais with Al Smith IV. His legendary great-grandfather was once asked by FDR, "Why do you Irish always answer a question with a question?" Smith replied, "Do we now?" (Laughter)

And Al Smith could handle a heckler. Once a heckler yelled, "Tell us all you know, Al. It won't take long." He shot back, "I'll tell them all we both know. It won't take any longer." (Laughter)

Commissioner Kelly told that story a few years ago, but I loved it, so I decided to steal it. Thank you, Commissioner Kelly.

You know, St. Patrick doesn't have much to say any more about how we honor him. But the founder of Notre Dame, Father Edward Sorin, did. In the 1860s, Father Sorin banned student celebrations of St. Patrick's Day because they had become too rowdy. Imagine that!

One of Father Sorin's successors maintained the ban, but he died in office, and his dying words were, "Be good to the students."

The next president of Notre Dame was a good Irishman, Father Patrick Colovin, who restored the St. Patrick's Day celebrations. He was beloved and then was removed. Father Sorin was Superior General of the Holy Cross Order at the time and forced him out.

My policy on St. Patrick's Day celebration lies somewhere between Father Sorin and Father Colovin. I get out of town. (Laughter) So, Members of the Society, thank you for giving me a good excuse to be out of town on St. Patrick's Day.

I'm standing next to a great at least honorary Notre Dame alum, Cardinal Dolan, a wonderfully hospitable person.

I know you may not believe this, but I was running late to get here and Cardinal Dolan, just tremendously generous, met me at LaGuardia and insisted on driving me himself. We were in a rush, so I hopped in the back of the car. You wouldn't believe the time we made on the Van Wyck.

Neither did the cop who pulled us over. As he called the dispatcher, he said, "I've stopped someone really big."

The dispatcher said, "How big?"

"Really big."

"Well, who is it?"

He said, "I don't know, but Cardinal Dolan is his chauffeur."
(Laughter)

Traffic on the Van Wyck is terrible. I'm told the only thing worse is getting stuck in line for confession behind Alex Rodriguez. (Laughter)

Now, I do want to get serious for a moment and remember two really great Americans, both with Irish ancestry, who died a couple weeks ago just two days apart from one another: a good friend of mine and many people in this room and a friend to all causes Irish, the former president of the Coca-Cola Company and Chairman Emeritus of the Board of Trustees of the University of Notre Dame, Don Keough; and his good friend and my good friend and brother in Holy Cross, the longest serving president of Notre Dame, the incomparable Father Theodore M. Hesburgh.

Years ago, Father Hesburgh accompanied Don Keough to Latin America, going from city to city on Coca-Cola's corporate jet with various Coca-Cola executives.

Father Ted said Mass every day of his life. They were leaving early. He said, "Don, rather than get up early and say Mass, could I say Mass on the plane?"

Don said, "Of course."

They were in a small cabin of a corporate jet and Don announced to the fellow executives, some of whom weren't Catholic, that Father Hesburgh was about to say Mass. He said he understood that a number of them weren't Catholic. They were cruising at about 50,000 feet. Don said, "Now, if you're uncomfortable with that, feel free to step outside. There's the door." (Laughter)

As my mother would say, Father Hesburgh — we called him Father Ted — was "a fine figure of a man," with a full head of silver hair, who smoked a good cigar every day of his life until he died at age ninety-seven.

It was a dark, dark day in the annals of this, the friendliest of societies, when New York officials in their wisdom made it unlawful to smoke cigars at this august gathering. I am proud to say that at Notre Dame Father Hesburgh could smoke a cigar anywhere he wanted, any time he wanted.

One story about Father Ted. A Jesuit dies and goes to heaven. He tells St. Peter that he's delighted to be in heaven but he's intimidated by meeting the indomitable Father Hesburgh.

St. Peter says, "Don't worry. There's a long line of people waiting to see Father Hesburgh. You won't meet him for a long time."

The Jesuit says, "Fine."

So he goes into heaven. The first thing he sees is this tall, handsome man with silver hair, a cigar, confident and affable, talking to everyone, and he's completely flustered.

He goes back to St. Peter and says, "St. Peter, I thought you said I wouldn't have to meet Father Hesburgh right away."

St. Peter says, "Oh, that's not Father Hesburgh. That's God. He just thinks he's Father Hesburgh." (Laughter)

You know, Notre Dame was given its French name by its French founder, Father Edward Sorin of the Congregation of Holy Cross. But nearly all of Sorin's successors had Irish ancestors. The student body has always had a very strong Irish presence, the campus a strong Irish flavor.

We are proud to say that we have the Keough-Naughton Institute for Irish Studies with distinguished scholars of Irish literature, language, art, society, Notre Dame is the largest center for the study of Irish language outside of Ireland, and we have a wonderful international study program in Ireland, all of which we are very proud of.

We are working on a documentary, were asked to do this by the Irish government, a definitive documentary of the 1916 rising, in time for the centennial celebrations next year.

And, very important, Notre Dame recently beat Navy in Dublin in football.

Above all, Notre Dame was shaped, and still is, by the deep thirst for learning of the Irish people, guided by a deep faith in God and enriched by the love of a community.

The spirit of the Fighting Irish is as good an explanation as any why Erin's small island and those who came from it have had such a big impact on the world. The influence is not due to great wealth. It did not come from military conquests. The source of Irish strength came from the virtues and characters of its people.

I came to know these virtues through my mother, a very Irish mother, Helen Condon, and her very Irish mother, Julia Ford Condon. My mother had an unwavering belief in the surpassing importance of family, friendships, and community. She couldn't get enough of family. She had twelve children, and now, at age eighty-six, has forty-five grandchildren.

My mother was also a person of deep faith. Like so many Irish, she knew tragedy in her life but learned to respond with resilient hope.

She grew up on a farm. When she was twelve, her father was crushed and killed by a thrashing machine. Her mother, my grandmother, was left with three children to raise. She was forced to sell the farm and used the proceeds to start an upholstery store. Her partner fled with the money. She had to begin again and work in a hospital to support the family. She never made much money, but she gave my mother and her brothers enough of the things that mattered. When my grandmother came to live with us, as she did in later life, I did not hear a single complaint from her or from my mother.

As we celebrate our Irish heritage, we celebrate the character of a people — a people who knew great hardships, tragedy, and displacement, yet whose commitment to faith and community enabled them to overcome whatever obstacles came their way. That is our heritage.

Centuries ago, under crushing penal laws, the Irish language and faith were prohibited, Mass outlawed, churches banned, priests executed, and millions starved. The Irish have nothing if not long memories, as well they should. So we of all people must rage against the plight of Christians around the world today, whether in Iraq or Egypt or anywhere else, who are being persecuted in the most barbaric ways at the bloody hands of ISIS or anyone else.

History has also made the Irish an immigrant people. Famine and oppression sent our ancestors to all corners of the globe, and particularly to the United States. They knew the heartbreak of leaving their families, the hardships of finding their way in a new land, the loneliness, the discrimination against poor immigrants. We, above all, should have hearts and minds open to the immigrants among us, wresting this issue from short-sighted partisan politics. (Applause)

This is one important way to honor our ancestors who endured so much so that we might call ourselves Americans.

We are the Irish of faith, which sustained us at difficult times; we are the Irish of love, which builds community and cares for the vulnerable; and we are the fighting Irish who rise above adversity and meet challenge with hope. Faith, love, hope — for most of us, these are the only treasures that our ancestors were able to take with them from their homes in Ireland. Fortunately, in the end nothing more was needed.

God bless the Irish, God bless the Friendly Sons, God bless the United States of America, and happy St. Patrick's Day.

(Applause)

PRESIDENT WALTON: Thank you very much, Father Jenkins.

It's now my great honor to introduce our next speaker, Coach Lou Holtz.

Lou is a West Virginia native and grew up in East Liverpool, Ohio. He graduated from Kent State in 1959. I will not recite the record of colleges Holtz has worked at, else you feel it's Holy Thursday and we are going through the Litany of Saints.

Needless to say, Coach Holtz was the winningest coach in Notre Dame history and has been a source of inspiration to students, faculty, and alumni alike.

For us youngsters, myself, growing up in the Midwest, the entire year revolved around football, practice starting on August 15, the Feast of the Assumption, and going through Thanksgiving. We played football in Lent, we played football in the ice and snow, and we took a brief respite for baseball. When Notre Dame or Ohio State were on TV, everybody was tuned.

This is the second time that Coach Holtz is addressing the Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick. On that prior occasion, we also had the luxury of hosting Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia.

Gentlemen, I am very pleased this evening to ask Coach Holtz to approach the podium.

Please be upstanding and charge your glasses.

Gentlemen, "To The United States."

(The toast was given.)

MR. LOU HOLTZ: Thank you very much. Thank you, John.

PARTICIPANT: Bravo, Coach!

MR. HOLTZ: My only desire is that the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick are friendly.

Ten percent of you won't remember 10 percent of what I said ten minutes after I said it. But I hope for the next few minutes we can share thoughts and ideas. The things I am going to talk to you about are things I believe, things I've experienced. I'm not going to talk about something I've read about or heard about.

I'm flattered and honored to be here.

Father John, I want to congratulate you on a beautiful speech. But more importantly, I want everybody, this entire room, to know the tremendous leadership that Father Jenkins and the Board of Trustees have provided to Notre Dame, and Notre Dame has never shone any brighter or been any stronger because of his leadership. So I congratulate him and I thank him.

I think it is important for you to understand who I'm not. I'm not a singer, I'm not a dancer, I'm not an entertainer, and I'm not an intellect. When I graduated from high school, I was in the lower third of my high school class. That's a fact. But if it were not for people like me there could have been no upper half of the class. (Laughter)

Someone said, “But you’ve written three New York Times best-selling books.” That is true. You’re looking at the only guy in the room who has written more books than he has read. (Laughter)

I say that just so you understand there’s nothing complicated about me.

People say, “Oh, you must have been a good athlete.” No, not really. I love golf. I live in Orlando. I belong to Bay Hill and played the men’s shootout several years ago. I was paired with Arnold Palmer. I was so nervous, I played so bad, and we lost money.

We’re in the locker room afterwards and I said, “Gee, Arnie, I’m sorry. I never played that bad before.”

He said, “Oh, you’ve played before, have you?” (Laughter)

It was a beautiful parade today. I did not march in it. The reason I don’t is I don’t believe in getting all excited and marching etc. at my age.

People say, “Well, do you exercise because you’re so thin?”

I say, “No. If there’s going to be heavy breathing it’s going to be in wife’s bedroom.” (Laughter)

Somebody said, “How do you stay so thin?”

I said, “I can’t eat when the Jets lose.” (Laughter)

What I’m going to share with you today is not very complicated. I try to keep life simple. See, we don’t have to complicate life. Do you realize there are only five colors of the rainbow? Look what Michelangelo did with those five colors. There’s only seven musical notes; think what Beethoven did with those seven musical notes. There’s only ten numbers — look what Bernie Madoff did with those ten numbers. (Laughter) I try to keep life simple.

But it is a pleasure and an honor to be here. You know, it’s hard to believe, 231 years ago, in 1784, the first group of The Friendly Sons of St. Patrick met. There were 100 in that entire group. That’s how it started out, 100. Yet, five of those 100 started to The Bank of New York. Then you look at this.

I think the Glee Club is absolutely beautiful.

I know that the wives aren’t here. I congratulate you. (Laughter)

And friendly stands for being very charitable, and you certainly have been, with all the money you raise for great causes. That was the purpose of this.

I want to pause here and say to you, even though your wives aren't here, if you want some great advice, listen to your spouse. Nobody knows you any better, loves you any more, wants to see you succeed any more, be any more honest with you.

I remember when I was at Ohio State we won the national championship. There was a billboard sign that said "Behind every successful man stands a very surprised mother-in-law." (Laughter)

I want to tell you I've been married for fifty-three years. My wife is my best friend.

We were on a golf course. I said, "Yeah, fifty-three years with my best friend."

He said, "No, no, your wife's not your best friend."

I said, "Oh yes, she is."

He said, "No, your dog is."

I said, "You're out of your mind."

He said, "Well, try this. Lock your wife and your dog in the trunk of the car and come back in two hours and see which one's happy to see you. The dog." (Laughter)

Maybe it is the dog.

I think it's absolutely fantastic that so many of you are here with your sons. I have four children. They're all girls but two. I'm real proud of that fact. I think how great to be with your sons.

I do want to say this. I wrote my children a letter not long ago, in all seriousness. I said, "You know, you may end up being president, you may end up being in jail, you may end up with all kinds of problems. But there's two things that are never going to change. Number one, you're always going to be my child, I'm always going to love you, and I'm always going to be there with you, because the thing about the Irish is you're family, you take care of one another."

That's why this organization was started. What greater compliment can there be to an organization than to take care of each other and treat them like family?

You know, I ask this question all the time: If you didn't show up, who would miss you and why? Think about it.

If the Irish had not come over here, would this country be the same? Absolutely not. You look at the great things the Irish have done here.

You look at politics — you can go with Al Smith. He built the Empire State Building in thirteen months. He started on March 17. He ran for office in 1928. You look at Kennedy.

You look at education, the Jesuits, the Augustinians, the Holy Cross priests, etc. Great education you brought here. You look at all the great institutions you have here — Manhattan, Fordham, St. John's — the list goes on and on.

You look at the entertainers. I need not tell you, so many of them.

You look at people in sports and athletics.

You look at the military. I remember when the Marine General Kelly was here he said, "They've given out 102 Medals of Honor in the Marines and 20 percent of them have gone to Irish people."

You look at the accomplishments you people have had.

You look at law enforcement, the number of Irish people and the great things they have done.

But, more importantly, I look at the work ethic, the character, the integrity that the Irish have brought to this country. It has been great.

Then again, I look at the Irish I have coached. I was at the College of William and Mary, where unfortunately we had more Mary's than we had William's. (Laughter)

The quarterback was Jimmie Laycock. Lo and behold, when I announced he was the starting quarterback, the second-string quarterback quit. The second game Jimmie Laycock gets injured and I've got to go with the third quarterback, who was Bubba Hooker, the third-string quarterback who was the athletic director's son. Now, do you realize how bad you have to be to be the athletic director's son and be third? That's bad. (Laughter)

He gets hurt in the fourth game and I've got to go with the fourth-string quarterback, a little young man by the name of Stevie Regen from New Jersey. He led us to a conference championship because he was a leader, he was unselfish, he was competitive, and he cared about people and he cared about being the best in the country. We won the conference championship.

Then I go to North Carolina State. There they had won three games in three years. I go over and I play basketball, and this little guy, Mike Devine from Pennsylvania, third-string safety, is guarding me. I'm the head coach. He's pushing me, he's fouling me. He doesn't apologize. He probably said, "Hell, that guy needs me on the field, he's that competitive." He ended up making All Conference. We went to four straight bowls.

And then I look, when I go to Notre Dame, we have a guy there by the name of Ryan Leahy, the grandson of Frank Leahy. He had trouble remembering on, over, outside — I mean that's not hard. (Laughter)

I said to him, "You're the grandson of Frank Leahy?"

He said, "Yes, sir."

I said, "Are you adopted?" (Laughter)

But my greatest — these are true stories — my greatest recruiting was not an Irishman but it was a Jewish young man by the name of Mike Rosenthal, who played at Penn High School, was High School All American, highly recruited. He was Jewish.

His mother did not like Notre Dame. I'll never forget being in his home. He was headed to Michigan, it was a done deal, and she's sitting like this.

She looked at me and she said, "Why should my Jewish son go to a Catholic university?"

I said, "That's so simple. No matter where he is on campus, he can look up at the lady on the dome and she was 100 percent Jewish. Michigan does not have that." (Laughter)

He came to the University of Notre Dame and made All American.

But most of all, I'm appreciative of the Irish for the faith that they brought here. When I was a youngster, I used to watch Bishop Sheen on TV. On the blackboard he would always write, "JMJ," Jesus, Mary, Joseph. Outside of that, the cardinals, the bishops, Father Jenkins, etc. — I have so much respect. You are my heroes. But I have some questions for you.

Some people have never been able to answer this: Why did Paul keep writing the Corinthians when they never wrote him back? It makes no sense. (Laughter)

There was a time you could not eat meat on Friday the entire year round, you had to eat fish. I did not like fish. I used to complain every Friday, "I wish the Apostles had been ranchers rather than fishermen." I'm convinced that's why. (Laughter)

Somebody said, "Well, why don't you be a vegetarian?"

"Vegetarian is an old Indian word that stood for bad hunter." (Laughter)

But I say this sincerely to the members of the clergy: you are my heroes, and I say it sincerely.

Ladies and gentlemen, on 9/11 a lot of brave people, policemen and firemen, went into a burning building down here and saved people's lives. What a great feat that is to save somebody's life.

But I want you to think how much greater it is to save somebody's soul, because you do that for an eternity. Cardinals and priests and bishops, etc., you and I have the same job: we're both working to beat hell, but we're doing it in different ways. I have so much respect for the difference you make in people's lives. I mean that sincerely.

(Applause)

A priest told me one time, "You can't take your money to heaven but you can take your children." That's pretty good advice.

But I also want to tell you how special it was for me to be part of the Notre Dame family for eleven years. I know Jimmy Dunne's not here. He's on the Board of Directors. But I'll tell you, you ought to get him up here to speak. He is an outstanding speaker and a great person.

I don't know if you realize it or not how Notre Dame got the word "Fighting Irish." When I went to Notre Dame, I studied everything I could about that university.

It occurred in the 1920s when the Ku Klux Klan came to South Bend against a Catholic. The Irish people from Notre Dame went down and confronted them and won the fight. The headline of the paper was "The Fighting Irish Defeat the Ku Klux Klan." That's where the word "Fighting Irish" was started.

It's ironic, though, that one of the biggest games we had to fight was against Miami. You remember that was a Catholic convict game. I really did not like that. I told Damietta (phonetic), "That is unfair to call a Catholic convict," because not all our team was Catholic. I didn't think that was real accurate on that. (Laughter)

They got in a fight before the game. Now, the people that were fighting were the third teamers. They aren't going to play. They have all this energy. They're going back to the dorms. But all of a sudden we had a fight. How embarrassing that was to me. We're the host, the University of Notre Dame. You don't conduct yourself that way.

I was so mad in the locker room. These are absolutely true stories. I said to them, "You embarrassed Notre Dame. I'm going to tell you, you'll pay for it on Monday. But I want to tell you this, if any of you show anything but class in this game, if I see the slightest bit of a lack of sportsmanship, you're not only not playing this year, you'll never again play at the University of Notre Dame. That's not the way we do things."

I said, "If they want to fight after the game, meet them in the parking lot. If they do, you save Jimmy Johnson's ass for me." (Laughter) That's true.

I wasn't done, but the team was. They went out of the locker room and won the game.

Also, we had a big luncheon before the game. I'll never forget, at that game I come in, I sit down, and the priest says, "Before I say invocation" — he looked over at me and he said, "Coach, I'm Father So-and-So, I'm from the University of Miami, I'm the team chaplain, I'm a Catholic priest. We're up here to win the game, our thirty-seventh consecutive victory, and I want you to understand, Coach Holtz, that God doesn't care who wins this game. Let us pray."

When it came my time to get up, I said, "Father, I agree with you God doesn't care who wins the game. But I want to promise you his mother does. She has great interest in this game." (Laughter)

I don't know how true this is, but they told me this when I went to Notre Dame. The weather is not particularly good there. But I don't know if you understand why Notre Dame ended up in South Bend. It wasn't supposed to. It was supposed to be in San Diego.

In 1842, Father Sorin and a great group of French priests set out from Baltimore, Maryland, and headed for San Diego, where they were going to start this great Catholic university. They came across northern Indiana. The weather was so bad — it was windy and snowy and freezing.

Father Sorin said, “I can’t go any further tonight, so I’ll tell you what we’re going to do. We’ll set up camp here and we’ll leave the minute the weather gets better.”

The weather never got any better. That’s why it happens to be there. (Laughter)

Now, when I went to the University of Notre Dame, Father Hesburgh said, “Coach, there are certain things at Notre Dame that are not negotiable. Don’t think you’re going to come here and change them.”

I said, “What are they?”

He said, “We don’t redshirt, we don’t take transfers, we don’t have an athletic door, we’re going to play the most difficult schedule we can find, we expect to win; we don’t have good facilities and we don’t plan on improving them because we want somebody to come here because we have a chemistry department, not because we have a great weight room.” And he said, “The other thing that we aren’t going to change is we have a policy that the head football coach at Notre Dame is not allowed to make more than the president of Notre Dame.”

The president of Notre Dame was a priest who took the vow of poverty. (Laughter) The most I ever made at Notre Dame was $135,000, and that was given to me my sixth year.

Father Hesburgh said to me, “I can name you the head coach of Notre Dame. I’m going to announce to the world that Lou Holtz is the head coach of Notre Dame. What I cannot announce to the world is you’re the leader. Titles come from above. Anybody can give you a title. They can name you president, they can name you manager, but they can’t name you the leader.”

I said, “What makes a leader, Father?”

He said, “You have to have a vision where you want to take the organization and you have to have a plan of how you’re going to do it. You better make sure you lead by example, hold people accountable for the choice they make, make sure everybody understands what your core values are.”

I’m going to make five assumptions of the people in this room tonight:

Number 1, I’m going to assume you want to be successful in your personal life.

Number 2, I’m going to assume you want to be successful in your professional life.

The third thing I’m going to assume is you want to feel needed.

The fourth thing I’m going to assume is you want to feel secure about your future.

The last thing I’m going to assume is you want to go to heaven.

With those five assumptions, ladies and gentlemen, I want to give you a very short plan on how you can achieve all five of those things. It isn’t very complicated.

I think the first thing that you have to do if you want to achieve those five things is have the proper attitude. I think the attitude we have is more important than anything else in this world.

I remember when I went to Notre Dame we had a quarterback by the name of Steve Beuerlein. He played fifteen years in the NFL, three-year starter, owned all the passing records.

I sat down with him the first week there and I said, “Steve, you own all the passing records and you’re a three-year starter. I’d like a running quarterback. But you aren’t very fast. I can live with that.”

Steve interrupted me and he said, “How slow do you think I am, coach?”

I said, “Steve, if you got in a race with a pregnant mother, the best you’d finish would be third.” (Laughter) “But,” I said, “Son, that’s not what bothers me. What bothers me is you threw seventeen interceptions as a junior. Son, I make this commitment to you: you will not throw seven interceptions your senior year.”

He got all excited. He said, “That’s great. Is it the way you run the routes or read the coverages?”

I said, “No. When you get to six you ain’t playing anymore. It’s not complicated.” (Laughter)

It’s amazing how his attitude changed.

You know, what's your attitude when you have adversity?

Let me tell you my first year at the University of South Carolina the following things happened. My wife had her second major cancer surgery. They gave her a 10 percent chance to live. Her weight went from 129 to eighty-nine. I don't even pray for her anymore; I pray to her. I mean she's a saint. My son Skip went into a coma the week we played Georgia. My mother died the Friday before we played Florida.

I'm on a school airplane for three days recruiting. We land at Lady Island Airport. The pilot said, "Coach, while you visit Darnell Washington, we're going to fly eleven miles to Hilton Head to get gas." During that eleven-mile flight the school plane crashed. One pilot was killed instantly, the other seriously injured and later died.

We lost every football game we played that year. We went 0/11. We had a kicker who said, "I can't kick when you're watching." (Laughter) You explain, "You are going to be at the game. That's part of your contract." We went 0/11 that year.

But records can be deceiving. We really weren't as good as our record would lead you to believe. (Laughter)

You talk about everybody bitching and moaning, nasty letters, nasty newspaper articles. Everybody's down. "He's too old; the game passed him by."

I'm in an airport after that first year. A guy comes up and said, "Anybody tell you you look like Lou Holtz?"

I said, "It happens all the time."

He said, "Really makes you mad, doesn't it?" (Laughter)

You're on the bottom. You have two choices: you stay down or you pick yourself up. It was like the Irish, anything else — you're going to get knocked down, you're going to have adversity, but you can succeed when no one believes in you. You cannot succeed if you do not believe in yourself.

I can't begin to tell you how many times I got down on my knees and prayed the Good Lord to give me the courage and the strength when I walked into a staff meeting or a team meeting. I believed in the vision.

Twelve months later, South Carolina had the second greatest turnaround in the history of NCAA football. We beat Ohio State in the bowl game the following year, finished eleventh in the country, beat Ohio State again.

You're going to get knocked down. That's part of life. You need to have fun with what you do, enjoy it.

I came to New York. I turned a job down with the Jets three different times. Al Ward said, "Come tell Leon Hess and Phil Iselin you don't want to coach the Jets."

So I come up here to say no.

I called my wife that night. She said, "You did what?"

I said, "I'm the head coach of the Jets."

She said, "You went there to turn it down."

I said, "Let's see what it's like."

I came here without a vision, without a plan. The first two weeks I'm here, we lose John Riggins to the Redskins, first year of free agency, get nothing in return. And every time something went wrong I'd say, "I didn't think this would happen. I didn't think this would work out. I didn't think it was what I wanted to do."

Ladies and gentlemen, I resigned from the New York Jets, one of the best jobs in the world. But it's like anything else. If our attitude's not right, we don't see the wonderful opportunities; we only see the negative things that happen.

So enjoy what you're doing. Look at the positives.

And have fun. People said, "Do you have fun doing ESPN?"

"Not really. I'm up in Bristol, Connecticut, fifteen minutes from Hartford, by telephone."

After the championship game I'm done. I'm not doing any more TV. I'm done.

But I want to tell you I had gone there with a guy named Mark Bain. Now, he's a beautiful guy, but we're different. He was a player; I was a coach. He made suggestions; I made decisions. He showered after work; I showered before work. He signed a paycheck on the back; I signed it on the front. (Laughter)

But I had fun when we were doing it, even though I may not want to be there, because if you have fun doing something, people have fun being around you. That's just the way it goes.

It doesn't mean you don't do dumb things. I went on TV one time and called it "University of Auburn." The next week I had to get on and apologize.

I said, "Many of you wrote. I'm a fast learner and I appreciate your writing me and telling me it's Auburn University and not University of Auburn. I made the mistake. I'm a great learner. I will not make it again. So please don't write anymore."

I then turned to Rece Davis. I said, "I had no idea that many people from Auburn could write." (Laughter) You want to talk about some nasty letters the next week.

We had no teleprompter, no script, no rehearsal. I get on TV one day and Mark Bain said something about golf. I said, "Mark, I want you to know I'm the best golfer at Lake Nona."

Now, we happen to have Graeme McDowell who lived there, Henry Stinson, Ian Poulter, Justin Rose. I came back the next day and all those members are on me about lying.

I said, "Let me tell you something. Three hundred members know I lied. Three hundred million people think I'm a hell of a golfer. I like those odds." (Laughter)

The last thing I want to say — it is a true story — is you can't let people control your attitude.

We're going down to play Florida in the Sugar Bowl seven years ago, coached by Steve Spurrier. We're an underdog. I felt we'd win the game, which we did, but nobody else gave us much chance.

Lo and behold, during those two days — I always want to be home with my family on Christmas Eve. I took my wife and my four children and went to Orlando and we went out to dinner. The waiter came up and he recognized me.

He said, "You're Lou Holtz, head coach of Notre Dame, aren't you?"

I said, "Yes, sir." I immediately took out my pen, thinking he wanted an autograph.

He said, "Let me ask you a question: what's the difference between Notre Dame and Cheerios?"

I said, "I don't have a clue."

He said, "Cheerios belong in a bowl; Notre Dame doesn't."
(Laughter)

Well, it made me mad. I'm in the state of Florida, we're going to play Florida, and he makes that comment. I got in a bad mood.

My wife said to me, "You're going to let somebody you never met before, you're never going to see again, doesn't care a thing about you, ruin this evening? You can't let other people control your attitude."

She's absolutely right. We had a wonderful evening. My attitude changed.

I felt so good a little bit later I called the waiter back over and I said, "Son, let me ask you a question: what's the difference between Lou Holtz and a golf pro?"

He said, "I don't have a clue."

I said, "A golf pro gives tips," which he found out when the meal was over. (Laughter)

The other thing is you have to have a passion to win. Whatever you do, you have to have a passion to win. That's the thing I love about the Irish. Whether they were boxers, competitors, they wanted to find a way to win the bet they could.

Everybody wants to win when the band's playing, the crowd's cheering, the TV lights are on. The question I ask is: Can you live with losing; can you live with failure, can you live with mediocrity?

See, ladies and gentlemen, we're going to have things go against us. I remember when I was at Arkansas and all we had to do was beat SMU and we'd be invited to the Orange Bowl. Arkansas had never been to the Orange Bowl. Not only that, we'd play Oklahoma, which at that time was number 2 in the country. The last time Arkansas played Oklahoma, Oklahoma beat them 107-0. We're ahead of SMU 42-14, the fourth quarter, fans throwing oranges on the field, everybody's excited.

After the game, the media said, "What did you think when the fans were throwing oranges out in the field?"

I said, "Thank God we weren't going to the Gator Bowl."
(Laughter)

It was an exciting time. But then, unfortunately, I had to suspend three athletes that scored 78 percent of our touchdowns.

The people said, “Are you a disciplinarian?”

“Not really. All I do is enforce people’s choices. You choose to violate the do-right rule, you’re choosing not to play.”

They violated the do-right rule. I said, “You aren’t going to play.” They got a lawyer, took me to court to get an injunction. The attorney general for Arkansas represented me because I was a state employee. He was named Bill Clinton. He did a marvelous job. We won the case. The players would not be allowed to play.

But I also lost a football team. Arkansas became the largest underdog there has ever been in a major bowl before they took it off the board. Nobody gave us a chance to win.

About three days before the game, at a team meeting our football team was in disarray, very negative. They came in. Their heads were down.

I said, “I know why we can’t win. Every day I pick up a paper and I read about the great players from Oklahoma who are going to play. Every day I pick up the paper and I read about the great players from Arkansas that are not going to play. But I’ve never read one positive comment about anybody in this room. So I know why we can’t win. I want you to tell me why we can.”

For a while nobody said anything. Then Charles Clay stood up and he said, “Coach, we have the number one defense in the country,” which we did. He said, “So we aren’t going to get beat near as bad as everybody thinks.” It wasn’t what I wanted. (Laughter)

Then they pointed out we had a great competitor at quarterback, had a great offensive line, pointed out we had a great punter, place kicker. I wanted them to say they had a great coach, but that never came up. (Laughter)

But when they left the room, it was a different team. Why? They focused on what we could do instead of listening to everybody tell us what we can’t. That’s what happens to too many people in this country. Everybody tells you why you can’t do something instead of looking for reasons why we can.

Four days later, we beat Oklahoma 31-6, which enabled Notre Dame to win the national championship because they jumped over us in the final poll.

Get rid of all the excuses.

I try to keep life simple. I had two mandates as a coach at Notre Dame: graduate the athletes and win. That's all. Not put them in the pros, not get to know the alumni, but graduate and win.

If you're in business, you have two mandates. Your two mandates are satisfy the customer and make a profit.

We complicate life. Keep it simple.

The first time I ever used common sense was in the seventh grade. This story is basically true but I'll embellish it. I had a nun named Sister Mary Harriet who disliked me. One day we had a huge test. I finished before everybody else because most of my paper was blank. I didn't want to look at a blank paper, so I started looking around out of boredom. I was not trying to cheat, but she thought I was.

She hollered in front of the whole class, "Lou Holtz, if I even suspect you of cheating I'm taking 10 percent off your grade."

I got out the textbook and said, "Ninety sounds good to me."

So just keep life simple. Satisfy the customer and make a profit. Graduate and win. Don't get complicated.

The fourth part of the plan: keep growing. Ladies and gentlemen, you're either growing or you're dying. Everybody needs four things in your life. If you don't have one of these four things, you find a tremendous void. Everybody needs something to do, everybody needs someone to love, everybody needs someone to believe in (in my case that's Jesus Christ) and the fourth thing is you need something to hope for. Ladies and gentlemen, have something to hope for.

For me, I wish the people in this country would not be content with where they are. But it's time somebody stood up and told people how good they could be and how much they're capable of accomplishing if you believe in it and if you have standards for it and you help them. But it doesn't happen. Oh, they just stay right there. It's wrong and it's unfair to the people of this country.

Now, I've done a lot of dumb things in this world, but let me tell you the one thing I truly regret. I went to the University of Notre Dame. The game before I got there, Miami had beaten them 58-6. We took that program on the bottom and we took it to the very top. For nine straight years we went to a January 1 bowl — the Sugar, the Cotton, the Orange, or the Fiesta. During those nine years the average rank of the team we played was number 6 in the country whose total record was something like eighty-four and six. We took it to the very top and we maintained it. That's the dumbest thing I've done.

The rule of life is you're either growing or you're dying. A tree is either growing or it's dying. So's a person. So's a marriage. It doesn't have a thing to do with age; it has everything to do with you're trying to accomplish something.

We finished second in the country and you know what everybody called me? An idiot — head idiot finished second in the country. A guy finishes last in medical school, they call him doctor. That doesn't seem real fair. (Laughter)

But you get on top. You get on top and you say, "This is pretty good. Let's not risk it. Let's not change. Let's maintain." The more successful you are, when you try to maintain you never have enthusiasm, no reason to celebrate. You never come up with any new ideas.

When I left the University of Notre Dame, I never thought I would coach again. Where do you go from Notre Dame? According to my mother, you go directly to heaven and you sit by the Pope, you don't coach anymore.

Then I went to live in a town where the average age was deceased. (Laughter) What I found out was I wasn't tired of coaching, I was tired of maintaining. That's absolutely critical.

So, ladies and gentlemen, that's why I say you always have to have something to hope for no matter how successful you are.

The last rule is the most important thing: make good choices. That's all life is, make good choices. Wherever you are, good or bad, is because of the choices you made.

I had three rules for our football team, for my children, for myself, for forty years — never needed a fourth rule. We have federal laws, county laws, state laws, corporate laws, bylaws, in-laws, and outlaws. We only need three laws:

Rule number 1, do right. Do what's right, and if you have any doubt, get out the Bible. I don't think it's right to find a teammate's wallet before he's lost it. That's called stealing, son. Just do the right thing. That's not hard, not complicated. Do the right thing. Why is it important to do the right thing? So people can trust you.

Rule number 2, do everything to the very best of your ability. That's all. Not everybody can be All American, but everybody can be the best they can be. Not everybody can be first team. I learned this from Woody Hayes when I coached for him. Your obligation as the leader, as a parent, is not to be well liked. You want to have a friend, buy a damn dog. Your obligation is to make them the very best they can. That's only when you have standards. The one standard everybody can reach is being the best you can be in every single phase of your life.

I'm at Notre Dame. We're playing Stanford, coached by Bill Walsh. We're ahead 16-nothing. We get beat. You know why we got beat? Because I let little things slide. I started letting little things slide instead of being tough and demanding.

I went to them on Monday and I said, "If I'm murdered tonight, the police won't even investigate it. All of you would be a suspect."

We had a physical practice where an All American guard, Aaron Taylor, was injured. His place was taken by a second-string left guard. It didn't take very long in the practice to realize the second-string left guard was just going through the motions.

I stopped practice and I said to him, "What gives you the right to cause your teammates to fail? The other ten guys are playing their hearts out with nothing to show for it. If you want to fail you have the right to fail, but nobody has the right to cause somebody else to fail because you don't fulfill your job. You join a team, you join a business, you bring a child into the world, you have an obligation."

He hemmed and hawed. I said, "Go think about it." The third-string left guard jumped in. I said we were going to play with that left guard. I didn't play him but I was mad. Break the huddle. We have the vacant area.

He said, "What do we do?"

I said, "Act like we have one."

Rick Mirer takes the ball, gives the ball to Reggie Brooks, our tailback. Oliver Gibson comes through the vacant spot, hits Reggie Brooks as soon as he gets the ball. Tremendous moment of silence. Reggie started to moan he couldn't see. It scares you. Turned his helmet around. He was fine, came back to the huddle. After three plays, they're complaining.

I said, "What's wrong?"

"We don't have a left guard."

I said, "When did you notice?" I said, "I'm tired of pretenders, I'm tired of imposters, I'm tired of impersonators. We played last week with eight players and three imposters. I'd rather we played with eight, though we would have lost."

(Inaudible) said, "Wow, if we had eleven like them nobody'd beat us."

We never lost again for our next seventeen straight games. The average margin of victory in the last five games was fourteen points, because of the obligation we had to be the best we can be and demand it from other people.

The last rule is just show people you care, that's all.

My wife and I are as different as night and day, as I said. She left me a note not long ago — and she doesn't have a sense of humor — this scared me. It said, "Lou, I can't please everybody in the world, so I'm going to stop trying and I'm going to focus on pleasing one person a day, and today's not your day, and tomorrow doesn't look real promising either." (Laughter)

She did one interview because it had to do with cancer. They said, "What did you learn from having cancer?" She said, "I learned how much my family loved me." We didn't love her any more; we showed it.

Why does somebody have to go through a catastrophe before we reach out and say how special you are?

My wife said to me, "How do you talk about caring about people with your bumper sticker on your car?" We go to church, Cardinal, and I've got to park in the back of the lot so nobody can see the bumper sticker. But it sums up how I feel about some of the people with their false handicap. The bumper sticker merely says: "Jesus loves you. Everybody else thinks you're an asshole." (Laughter)

Ladies and gentlemen, if you do the right thing, you're always going to have people who will trust you. All relationships have to be based on trust. If you do everything to the best of your ability, they know you're committed to excellence, and always show people you care, it works out.

There's a statue of me at Notre Dame. I guess, Father Jenkins, they needed a place for the pigeons. I don't know. On this pedestal there are three words: Trust, Commitment, Love. Those were our core values. Those were the things we believed in.

Ladies and gentlemen, that's the plan that enables us to do those five things, those five assumptions I made.

You've absolutely been great, but I've just got to close with a couple thoughts.

Think how great this country would be if our government operated by those three rules. See, ladies and gentlemen, I was born with a silver spoon in my mouth. I wish I could trust a government, knew they were committed to excellence, and cared about me as much as maybe somebody else.

But I was born with a silver spoon in my mouth. My dad went to the third grade. I was born in the Depression in 1937. He'd gone to the third grade. I wasn't born in a hospital; I was born in a cellar by Dr. McGraw. We had one bedroom for my sister, myself, and my parents. We had a kitchen and a half bath. Seven and a half years we lived there. There was no welfare, there were no food stamps, there was no safety net.

But I'll tell you why I felt I was born with a silver spoon in my mouth, because I was born in this country. I was taught by my parents to make good choices, to be held accountable for the decisions I made.

They also told me, "We'll take care of you when you're young and you take care of us when we're old." We did that. We thought that was our obligation, to take care of our parents. They take care of us when you're young.

I also believe coming in here to have the opportunity to be with great people, to be involved with the game of football, which I truly love, where I learned more than I ever did in a college classroom.

I also say this, that there's two things that young people should be taught at home and reinforced in the school that's no longer taught.

Number one, they should be taught respect for authority — respect for parents, respect for elders, respect for teachers, respect for coaches, but, more importantly, respect for the law. That’s not taught anymore and it’s not reinforced.

The other thing that should be taught is what whatever choices they make are going to have ramifications. They have to learn if they make bad choices there are penalties that go with it. But if we have people continuing to make bad choices without any ramifications, we are never going to get things solved.

If you choose to do drugs, drop out of school, join a gang, have five tattoos all over you, have five children out of wedlock, you’ve chosen to have difficult life, and don’t blame me.

Let’s teach people to make good choices. It’s not real complicated if you follow those three simple rules.

Last summer I went over to Afghanistan to visit with our troops. Ladies and gentlemen, if you have any doubt about some of the great people in this country, you go over and visit them. I spent eight days.

I was an officer in the Army. I was over there. I had to wear a thirty-five-pound flak jacket and a helmet. I had a master marksman with me the whole time. The biggest difference between there and Iraq was when you went into the mess hall they took their weapons with them, because that’s up there in the mountains where they had a lot of “blue on green” killing. There I was, over there for eight days.

I got back and my wife said, “Were you ever scared?”

I said, “Not until I landed in Chicago.” (Laughter)

How blessed I’ve been. Ladies and gentlemen, this is a great country, and what makes it a great country is because people are trying to come here and not trying to leave.

Very simple. I feel this way about immigration, the same thing I told our football players the day they reported, and I feel this way about immigration. You come here to become us. We didn’t bring you here to become you. I don’t care who comes here or where they come from. I do care why they come here, because they want the opportunity to succeed, they want the opportunity to make a better life by hard work.

There are too many citizens in this country that are dying. I'm not talking about physically. We have too many citizens in this country who are content wherever they are, whether it's in a simple little job or whether it's on welfare or food stamps, like that's the best thing that could happen to them.

That's absolutely wrong, ladies and gentlemen. I believe in this country. It's the greatest country in the world.

But the question I ask so many times is: what are our core values? You know, ladies and gentlemen, what holds a family together, what holds a business together, what holds a country together, what holds a team together are core values. You don't have to like one another, you don't have to like the same music. You have to share the same core values.

At one time core values in this country were the same things that the Irish believed in: hard work, perseverance, etc.

Ladies and gentlemen, when I stood up here I knew 10 percent of you wouldn't remember 10 percent of what is said. But for the last fifteen minutes you have given me your most prized possession, your time. I really appreciate the opportunity to be here.

I leave you with this very last thought. Will the next generation be glad that we came along? Will they be glad that we came along, that you stood up and believed in the core values and fought for them, or are you going to be silenced by the people who worry about being politically correct?

Ladies and gentlemen, since I've spoken out I've had the IRS investigate me. They can't find a thing. Let me tell you, bring the damn thing on, because I believe in this country and I'm going to stand up so that some day later they won't say "Where were you?"

God bless Ireland. God bless you. God bless this country.

(Applause)

PRESIDENT WALTON: Gentlemen, please remain upstanding. While this ends our toasts, I would ask the gentlemen to be upstanding for the singing of our National Anthem.

(Singing of National Anthem by participants)

PRESIDENT WALTON: Thank you.

Gentlemen, this concludes the 231st Anniversary Dinner of the Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in the City of New York.

Please get home safely.

(Adjourned: 9:51 p.m.)

REGULAR STATED MEETING

held at

The Princeton Club

New York, New York

May 4, 2015

---

The Regular Stated Meeting of the Society of the Friendly Sons of Saint Patrick in the City of New York, held on Monday May 4, 2015, at The Princeton Club, 15 West 43rd Street, New York City, was called to order by the President of the Society, John C. Walton.

PRESIDENT JOHN C. WALTON: Gentlemen, may I have your attention, please? Thank you for being present at our May meeting. I am very happy to have with us the speaker this evening, Bill Duggan, who will talk to us about “Dagger John.”

Before we begin our dinner, I would like Kevin Faughey please to lead us in the singing of “The Hail of the Friendly Sons.”

(“The Hail of the Friendly Sons” was performed by the Glee Club.)

PRESIDENT WALTON: Gentlemen, thank you.

We have a number of guests this evening. I am going to first invite Father Sakano to say grace, and afterwards dinner will be served. After dinner we will go through the formal part of our business meeting. Then Mr. Duggan will speak on the topic at the end.

Now I invite Monsignor Donald Sakano, please, to join me at the podium and say grace.

MSGR. DONALD SAKANO: Thank you.

We assemble before you, Lord, in prayer to give you thanks for the blessings you bestow upon us. In return for the food we enjoy this night and the good company we keep, may we become more aware of what you ask of us in return: that we be a people of justice who are inspired by those men and women who have gone before us and live among us now, who are willing to sacrifice even with their lives for the cause of freedom; that we are a people who seek peace, knowing that it is our quick response to injustice that ensures it; that we are a people who strive for excellence by empowering others with the highest values that come from the best of our tradition; that we must be vigilant about hunger, both of the soul and stomach, knowing that such emptiness is alien to the dignity and rights of all people. Therefore, oh Lord, we ask for your blessing on every morsel we eat and every breath we take so that we become your apt stewards in a world where hunger and injustice persist, that, nourished with the food of courage, honor, and loyalty, we will work toward creating a world that is in harmony with your divine will. We are confident of this, for you have guided in the past and abide with us still. We are sons and daughters of St. Patrick. We ask this through Christ our Lord. Amen.

PRESIDENT WALTON: Thank you very much, Monsignor.

Please be seated. We will have dinner, after which we will have the formal part of our meeting. Thank you.

(Dinner served)

PRESIDENT WALTON: Gentlemen, may I have your attention again? I realize there may be a little bit of clanking while the servers remove the plates and serve dessert, but I would like to get the formal part of our meeting under way.

As the first order of business, I would like to recognize our Secretary, John Coleman, to come to the podium for the purpose of reading the minutes of the January meeting.

MR. JOHN A. COLEMAN, III: Mr. President, I submit that we dispense with the reading of the minutes of the January meeting and that they be accepted into the record as prepared.

PRESIDENT WALTON: May I have a motion to accept the minutes?

(A motion to accept the minutes was made and seconded.)

All in favor.

(Chorus of "Ayes")

The motion is moved.

I would now like to recognize our Treasurer, Tom Sullivan, to render his report.

MR. THOMAS H. SULLIVAN: Thank you, Mr. President, fellow Friendly Sons.

Picking up on my prior report at the January meeting, our cash on hand as of January 1 of this year was $280,028. Since that time, with the dinner receipts and membership dues coming in, the receipts have been a total of $674,225, for a total of cash on hand plus receipts of $954,253.

Disbursements during that period, up until April 30, totaled $712,825. That number included charity grants of, in my numbers as of April 30, $185,000 worth of charity grants, the checks issued and cashed, and $15,000 that have not yet been cashed, plus another $100,000 contribution to the St. Patrick's Cathedral Rehabilitation Fund.

All of that leaves us with cash on hand as of April 30, 2015, of $241,428.

In our capital fund, the market value of our investments as of April 30 comes to $2,479,125.

PRESIDENT WALTON: Gentlemen, may I have a motion for approval?

(A motion to accept the Treasurer's report was made and seconded.)

All in favor.

(Chorus of "Ayes")

The motion is carried.

Tom has brought with him as a guest this evening Matt McCabe, who has been a beneficiary of our charity, our good offices, a senior at Xavier High School. Do you want to just stand up and introduce yourself? Could you please come up here and tell everybody that you are going to be actually going to college next year?

MR. MATT MCCABE: Hi, everyone. I'm Matt McCabe. I'm a senior at Xavier High School. I will give you a little bit of background.

My parents divorced in 2007. I was going to public middle school, and I knew I really wanted to go to private high school. Now, that being said, my mom is a single mom and had no clue how she was going to do it. But she knew that she wanted to provide that for me.

Because of the Friendly Sons, I have had the opportunity of a lifetime to attend Xavier and have had more experiences than I would have had anywhere else. I'm happy to say that I will be going to Purdue University next year to study mechanical engineering. Thank you all for allowing me this opportunity to show you what you guys have done.

(Applause)

PRESIDENT WALTON: As my second-year Latin teacher said, Id me placuit, "It pleases me."

It is my sad duty to read the names of the members who have passed away since our last meeting: Michael D. McQuade, Patrick Moloney, His Eminence Edward Cardinal Egan, Donald Horan, Glenn Patterson, James F. Murphy III.

I would also like to add to this list Officer Brian Moore, who died this morning in Jamaica Hospital.

Gentlemen, could you please rise and render a moment of silence.

(All rose)

Thank you, gentlemen.

I would like to now recognize Matt McLaughlin, who is going to stand in for Lawrence Cooke, who had to leave early for familial duties, to render the report of the Admissions Committee.

MR. MATTHEW T. MCLAUGHLIN: Thank you, Jack.

I'm not as tall as Lawrence nor as good-looking as Lawrence, and probably not as smart. But it so happens that Lawrence is a volunteer firefighter — there's nothing familial at all about his excuse — Lawrence is a volunteer firefighter in Pelham Manor, and he finds it a better use of his time to pull cats from trees rather than serve as the reporter for the Admissions Committee. So I have been asked to stand in and do Lawrence's duty.

The Committee met this afternoon and it moved to Life Membership the following two members: James Rafferty and John Corcoran.

The Committee also recommends that the following names be admitted to Active Membership: Elias Bahou, Patrick Begos, Christopher Ciullo, Brian Ciullo — hold on, Bahou, Begos, Ciullo. Am I in the wrong place? I think — maybe this is why Lawrence isn't here — the Admissions Committee is not doing its proper diligence anymore.

So I will continue: Bartholomew Codd — now it's getting better — Timothy Codd, William Finn, David Fitzmaurice, Edward Greason, Martin Kehoe, Thomas McFarland, Shane Madden, Kevin Maloney, Robert Meagher, Michael O'Hare, Stephen O'Hare — now we're cooking with gas — Patrick Power, Brian Reidy, Michael Reidy, Ambrose Richardson, Erik Rocca, Patrick Tully, Matthew Worsham, Christophre Cornett, Bryan Dowdall, Patrick Jordan, John McCormack, Raymond Murphy, and finally, Philip C. Ziminsky.

The Admissions Committee recommends that those gentlemen be admitted as active members of the Friendly Sons.

Gentlemen, before we make the motion and before I conclude the Admissions Committee report, I would just like to thank the Admissions Committee, led by the very able Lawrence Cooke, for bringing to the Society those thirty-plus names. We have grown precipitously in the last couple of years. We dipped in the post-2008 recession, but the numbers are back, upwards of 900. If we stay at this pace, we will be fully packed in a year or so.

So, gentlemen, it is the duty of everybody in this room and the duty of the other members of the Society not here present to keep bringing in new members. There are applications available electronically. There are applications available on paper outside with Jackie. It is our Society to grow. So let's all keep up the good work. I thank the Admissions Committee.

May I please have a motion to accept the recommendations of the Admissions Committee?

(A motion to accept the recommendations of the Admissions Committee was made and seconded.)

All in favor.

(Chorus of "Ayes")

Thank you, gentlemen.

PRESIDENT WALTON: I can tell you, Matt, Brian Ciullo is my godson, and his mother is Irish. I have known Bob Ciullo, who is 100 percent Italian, since we went to graduate school forty years ago.

It is now my duty to propose a Nominating Committee to recommend to the membership those to serve as officers of the Society and to be voted upon at the annual meeting in November. I hereby designate the following members to serve on the Nominating Committee: Mark Codd as Chairman, Thomas O'Brien, Alfred Smith, Robert J. Reilly, Victor Ziminsky, Jr., John FitzSimons, Ray Teatum, Peter Scales, John Waldron, and Joe Geoghan.

All in favor.

(Chorus of "Ayes")

Gentlemen, the Glee Club will entertain us after Mr. Duggan's presentation on "Dagger John." Jim Keaney has with him business cards with the information regarding the Glee Club, and if you are interested or if you know somebody who would be interested in singing with the Glee club, please see us afterwards.

I would like to introduce our speaker for the evening, William Duggan, Chairman of the Archbishop Hughes Commemorative Committee.

As we know, Archbishop Hughes was one of Ireland's greatest emigrants to the United States in the nineteenth century, yet very little has been done to tell his story. The Archbishop Hughes Commemorative Committee, in collaboration of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, the Ancient Order of Hibernians, and Knights of Columbus, is pleased to announce that a lasting memorial has been commissioned to honor and perpetuate the life and legacy of Archbishop John J. Hughes, Ireland's greatest immigrant of the nineteenth century and unsung American hero. The memorial will be unveiled at a ceremony celebrating the 200th anniversary of the Basilica of St. Patrick's Old Cathedral in November by His Eminence Cardinal Timothy Dolan. I understand the date is November 22.

Bill Duggan is Maersk Line's head of operations for North American Refrigerated Services. He is a refugee from Brooklyn, with his ancestry traced back to Galway and County Cork. Mr. Duggan refers to himself, incorrectly, as a native of Staten Island, as so many would. He is a graduate of Monsignor Farrell High School and Ball State University. He and his wife Terry have four children. He is a member of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in Morris County, on the Executive Board there, the Order of Ancient Hibernians, Division 9, New York Knights of Columbus, Council 359 of Morristown, New Jersey, and Fourth Degree and Deputy Grand Knight.

Mr. Duggan, I invite you to the podium.

MR. WILLIAM DUGGAN: Thank you very much, Jack, for that kind introduction. You have stolen most of my speech, so I will try to ad lib it as I go.

Good evening, everyone. Brother Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, it is a great honor to be given this opportunity to speak in front of you tonight about an initiative our Committee has been so passionately working on for the past several years that will finally culminate and come to fruition this November.

Today, though, I speak to you as the Chairman of the Archbishop Hughes Commemorative Committee, which, as Jack has outlined, is a dedicated group of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, the Ancient Order of the Hibernians, and, most recently, the Knights of Columbus. We have all come together to culminate this very great and passionate event that we will have in the unveiling.

You are probably asking yourself why a Jersey guy is so interested in honoring the life of a New York archbishop. Why is this being done after so many years? Why now? Well, the Diocese of New York at the time also included Northern New Jersey. During his Episcopal reign, Archbishop Hughes opened and blessed our home parish church in Morristown, New Jersey, the Church of the Assumption, where so many Irish workers were sent to take care of the estates and the farms of the rich. The Irish were hired right out of Ellis Island and sent directly to Morristown, which today is a vibrant community with deep Irish roots and affinity.

Like many great ideas, the concept of honoring Archbishop Hughes began over a pint in one of Morristown's fine Irish establishments, the Dublin Pub. The Heritage Committee of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick had a history of honoring unsung Irish heroes within the tri-state area. We convinced the United States National Park Service to erect a plaque at Jockey Hollow, the country's first national park, commemorating the brave Irish soldiers who fought under General George Washington during the Revolutionary War. We placed a plaque on the side of Assumption Church commemorating the Irish immigrants and Irish families who lived in Morristown's Little Dublin neighborhood. Using the help of an accomplished surveyor, we placed a plaque marking the infamous Five Points neighborhood in Manhattan. Of course, we chose the nearest pub to hang that plaque.

Another was a plaque we hung inside the historic Fraunces Tavern, the place where eighteen generals of Irish descent said goodbye to General George Washington before he took his inauguration as our country's first president just a stone's throw away on Wall Street.

With Irish legacy in mind, we decided to contact the Basilica of St. Patrick's Old Cathedral, the site of Hughes's parish and residence, and give it our best shot. We were contacting an Italian-Japanese priest who had no idea who we were and asking him to hang a plaque on his building commemorating Irish history. And by the way, the building is a protected site of the National Register of Historic Places. So what do you think our odds of succeeding were?

Well, to our big surprise, Monsignor Donald Sakano, a man with true vision and true passion for the Archbishop Hughes himself, invited us to meet and discuss this initiative in further detail. In fact, it was Monsignor Donald Sakano who came up with the idea to memorialize Archbishop John J. Hughes instead. Why not? You don't have to ask us twice. We are very fortunate to have been very well received by Monsignor Sakano. Who would ever think that a person with the last name of Sakano would be so devoted to Irish history, but as Chaplain for the Ancient Order of Hibernians and many other organizations, I can tell you that the Irish have no bigger fan than Monsignor Donald Sakano.

(Applause)

Thank you, Monsignor, for your leadership on this project. You have found a way to harness our energy and guide our passion to create something more spectacular than we originally envisioned, a tangible way to continue Archbishop Hughes's life work in the twenty-first century. Instead of hanging a two-foot-by-three-foot plaque that we dreamed of over a pint in the Dublin Pub, I am proud to announce that the scope of this project has grown slightly. In conjunction with the Basilica of St. Patrick's Old Cathedral's 200th anniversary, the Archbishop Hughes Commemorative Committee has commissioned a world-class sculpture to create an almost twelve-foot-tall memorial in his likeness on the grounds of the Basilica and, most importantly, has established a fund that will continue his legacy of social mobility through education by financially supporting the newly created Archbishop John Hughes Center for Spiritual Formation. The memorial and center will be unveiled by His Eminence Timothy Cardinal Dolan, as mentioned, on November 22 this year — it's a Sunday — right after our mass.

I would like to spend a few minutes, though, on the topic of why you are here tonight — that is, who was Archbishop John J. Hughes? — and describing why we are doing what we are doing.

John Hughes was the son of Patrick and Margaret Hughes, born in County Tyrone, Ireland, in 1797. He once eloquently said, “I lived the first five days of my life on terms of social and civil equality with the most favored subjects of the British Empire. And then I was baptized.”

He would one day become the fourth Roman Catholic bishop of New York and the city's first archbishop. A champion of religious equality, Hughes was motivated by his firsthand experience of religious persecution in Ireland. A lifelong champion of tolerance, this dedicated educator went on to found St. John's College, now Fordham University, and lay the cornerstones of St. Patrick's Cathedral. Hughes was connected with all major figures of the day, from Elizabeth Ann Seton, America's first Roman Catholic saint, to President Abraham Lincoln, who entrusted him with a special diplomatic mission during the Civil War.

Patrick Hughes, John's father, settled his family in Maryland, a place where his family could live and worship freely without any of the discrimination of that era. John wished to follow his calling and become a priest. Ironically, his initial application to Mount St. Mary's in Emmitsburg, Maryland was rejected by the same person he would someday replace in New York City, Bishop John DuBois. Rejected from the seminary, Hughes could only find work as a gardener, taking up menial tasks on the grounds of the seminary. He became acquainted with Sister Elizabeth Ann, who eventually championed his application and helped him gain admission to the seminary. His gifts of intelligence, captivating writing, and bold oration became very apparent right away.

After graduating, Hughes was first sent to Philadelphia, but the famine in Ireland and subsequent wave of immigration caused the population in New York City to explode. Hughes was sent to St. Patrick's, the second-oldest church in New York at the time, and began administering to the impoverished and destitute Irish famine people.

Hughes backed down from no one and became known as John “Dagger” Hughes. With his fiery speeches and his signature with the cross after his name, he defined his people, fought for equality, and insisted that his Irish get a place at the table in America. Some of Hughes’s famous sayings were: “I was afloat on an ocean looking for a home and a country to which no stigma of inferiority would be impressed upon my brow simply because I professed one creed or another.”

Another of his quotes: “There is no such thing as a predominant religion, and the small minority is entitled to the same protection as the greatest majority. No denomination, whether numerous or not, can impose its religious views on a minority at the common expense of that minority and itself.”

Hughes not only stood for his Irish people, he was passionate about equality and freedom for all men, themes akin to the values this nation was built on.

Before the neighborhood became affectionately known as SoHo and Little Italy, it was less affectionately known as a place of tenement-style living for poor, uneducated Irish immigrants during a time of heightened discrimination and bigotry, the infamous Five Points neighborhood. If Old St. Patrick’s was a vehicle for stability and social mobility for the downtrodden Irish community, Archbishop John J. Hughes, New York’s first archbishop, was that vehicle’s driver.

How does one memorialize a man of this stature? Any Fordham alumni out there tonight will point out that there is already a statue of Hughes sitting in Fordham University today. However, this new memorial will bring Hughes back to the place where he had his greatest achievements for his Irish people, the place of his parish, the place where he actually resided, his home.

The Committee has commissioned the Irish sculptor Rowan Gillespie to create a world-class piece of art that will permanently recognize the archbishop’s life’s work and invaluable contributions to both the country and the early Irish immigrants. It is only fitting that an Irishman like Rowan was chosen to create this tribute to the Basilica, as it will sit in the heart of the global artistic community. Rowan is well known for many works of art in Ireland and Canada and the United States that truly capture the Irish spirit of perseverance. You may have seen his work in Dublin's Kilmainham Prison, where he memorialized the men who were executed after the 1916 Easter Uprising, or "Titanica," his sculpture that sits outside the Titanic Museum in Belfast, or his tribute to the victims of the Irish famine located in the Custom House Quay in Dublin, as well as Canada's Ireland Park outside of Toronto or his tribute to the four Irish Nobel laureates that rests on the campus of Boston College today.

We can soon add New York City to his list of sculptures and memorial art that will commemorate the Irish right here in New York City. The following words will be engraved into the Hughes memorial that will rise tall at Old St. Patrick's: "Immigrant, shepherd, peacemaker, defender, patriot, educator, builder, and visionary."

I will explain why we chose these words carefully and show why that has an impact on the people in our society.

Immigrant: Born in a small hamlet in County Tyrone, he emigrated to America, rose from poverty to become the only first archbishop of New York. But after one of the most universally respected national leaders of his time — like Hughes, we are all immigrants in this country — he left his home for a better world.

Shepherd: Hughes led the establishment of extensive social outreach to the immigrant Irish community in the form of schools, hospitals, orphanage, charitable institutions, providing the much-needed means of survival and social advancement to his flock. He welcomed to his diocese the destitute poor, uneducated, unchurched — which was due to the penal laws of the day — Irish Catholics, who were shunned by society. Still, so many immigrants in Manhattan, and specifically the neighborhood that is now Old St. Patrick's, need the same shepherding today.

Peacemaker: In a speech characterized by both bold authority and humanistic compassion, Hughes played a pivotal role in peacefully calming the 4,000 rioters protesting the socioeconomic injustice at the time of the nation's first federally mandated military draft in July of 1863 in New York City. Encouraging peaceful protest, Hughes told the crowd, "Every man has a right to defend his home or his shanty at the risk of life. The cause, however, must be just and must not be aggressive or offensive. Do you want my advice? Well, I have been hurt by the report that you are rioters. You cannot imagine that I could hear these things without being grievously pained. Is there not some way by which you can stop these proceedings and support the laws, none of which have been enacted upon you as Irishmen and Catholics?"

Given the country's recent social unrest and subsequent rioting, we are in great need of a peacemaker, more now than ever before.

Defender: An aggressive opponent of nativism, Hughes grudgingly won the respect of local and national leaders by boldly defending the Irish people and his church during an era of intense anti-Catholic and anti-Irish discrimination. He stood up to all who tried to put them down, including the famous story of him warning the nativist mayor of New York at the time that if one church in New York was burned like that in Philadelphia or in Boston, he would not be able to control his people, and New York City would be like a second Moscow. The AOH, the Ancient Order of the Hibernians, proudly defended the campus, and nothing happened that day.

Patriot: One of President Lincoln's closest allies, Hughes was asked to serve as a special envoy to the Catholic heads of state in Europe during the American Civil War, with the purpose of enlisting and solidifying foreign support for the Union's cause. Hughes's mission was critical, as the English had sided with the Confederacy and he needed to shore up the countries, which he did. He worked very hard at establishing that and accomplished that.

Archbishop Hughes also accepted an invitation to speak before Congress, which he graciously accepted. He spoke about Americanism, virtues associated with good citizenship.

President Lincoln once wrote that "having formed the archbishop's acquaintance in the earliest days of our country's present troubles, his counsel and advice were gladly sought and continually received."

Educator: Knowing that quality education was a key to social mobility, Hughes established the city's first parochial school system and founded St. John's College, which later became Fordham University, the first Catholic institution of higher education in the Northeastern United States. To this day, quality education is still the key to achieving the American dream.

Builder: Hughes presided over an era of explosive institutional growth and spearheaded the extensive building of churches, parishes, schools in his Episcopal reign in New York. During his time, he built over 100 churches, helped open the Sisters of Charity along with Sister Elizabeth Ann Seton, and assisted with the creation of the Emigrant Savings Bank to help the poor find a way and a safe haven for what little money they had. This bank is still active today and is the largest privately held bank in America.

Lastly, visionary: Hughes had a vision, known as “Hughes’s Folly.” Hughes laid the cornerstone of St. Patrick’s Cathedral in what was then an undeveloped portion of rural Manhattan. On a humanistic level, where others saw uneducated masses living in poverty, Hughes had the vision to see the magnificent character, heart, and untapped potential of the nation’s struggling Irish Catholic people. Hughes’s friend Secretary of State Seward was also a visionary and speculated on a cold, wayward piece of land that was to be called Alaska that would become known as “Seward’s Folly.” We all know the outcome of these so-called follies.

While these words are impactful in their own right and having just a few on your résumé is impressive, Hughes had all of them. He was a truly remarkable person and was one to whom we are finally giving the recognition he has so deserved and long been overlooked. We are doing this now because people like John Joseph Hughes’s story must be told.

With that in mind, we have an opportunity to continue his legacy. The Committee has established a fund to financially support the Archbishop John Hughes Center for Spiritual Formation. Archbishop Hughes pioneered New York City’s parochial system, as well as Fordham University. Returning Catholic education to the site of the former church is not only a powerful piece of symbolism, but also a much-needed resource to the neighboring community. With many immigrants in the area surrounding the Basilica, the church has seen an influx of many new families and young people coming back to learn. There is a growing and vibrant community of many different nationalities that will benefit from the Hughes Center once opened. The Center’s mission is to promote the faith through ongoing spiritual formation of young adults and families through catechesis, Bible study, and cultural activities.

In the words of Monsignor Donald Sakano, “Archbishop Hughes addressed the need to evangelize the unchurched, particularly the immigrants from Ireland. Today the Church must reach out in the spirit of new evangelization to reignite the faith among young adults who will be parents in tomorrow's world. Archbishop Hughes is the perfect role model for all of us in our searching for creative ways to build the body of Christ, the Church."

Located at the heart of Old New York, the Center will engage in activities of an educational, cultural, and social nature to impart and maintain the Catholic faith. A director of religious education will supervise instructors, catechesis, and volunteers in order to carry out these activities. I cannot stress enough how important this Center is to the people of that neighborhood.

In conclusion, St. Patrick's Cathedral was selflessly built with the pennies of poor Irish immigrants. This memorial and Spiritual Center can only be built with the dollars of more fortunate Irish Americans whose success is owed, in large part, to people like Archbishop John J. Hughes. Hughes was not only considered by most to be the greatest Irish immigrant of the time; he was one of the most historical figures of the nineteenth century. Amazingly, very little has been told about this man's story.

It is our goal that this beautiful work of art will be a lasting memorial and communicate this achievement to future generations to come. It is also our goal to serve as a physical beacon for these missions of social justice, quality education, successful immigration, and peacemaking. While it is a memorial that will tell his story, it is also the Center for Spiritual Formation that will carry out his life's mission and continue his work in a tangible, impactful way for an immigrant community and an immigrant parish that still needs help today.

Can you see the parallels? Hughes passionately fought for stability, education, and assimilation opportunities for an immigrant population in nineteenth-century New York. Today, while celebrating the 200th anniversary of his church, we will have the opportunity to evangelize the young professional people that are moving back into the neighborhood and bring them back to their Catholic faith to create stability, education, and assimilation opportunities for immigrant populations in a different New York.

Hughes dedicated his life to helping our Irish ancestors who came before us. We assimilated, and successful Irish Americans like us have an opportunity to help others and new immigrants — in the same way the neighborhood — who are dealing with these very same struggles now. We are a powerful and symbolic opportunity to make this happen.

In the face of discrimination, political intimidation, physical violence, Archbishop Hughes stood for what he believed in: the dignity and potential of this country's Irish people. As brothers in the present-day Irish American community, let's choose to stand with him now. Let's tell his story and let's continue on his life's mission in a way that would make him proud of us.

God bless John Joseph Hughes, God bless the thirty-two counties of Ireland, and God bless the United States of America. Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT WALTON: Thank you very much, Bill.

I am reminded that, after he was assassinated, accompanying the honor guard at President Lincoln's funeral procession was the "Fighting 69th," the Irish who only a few years before had been regarded as so lowly in our society.

Another thing about Hughes, his intelligence, is that he only chose non-English-speaking Jesuits to first teach at Fordham, which didn't impair them in the least.

Bill, thank you very much. Rowan Gillespie is a great sculptor. In addition to the ones you cited, there is a statue to Johnny Kilbane, who was the longest-reigning champion fighter in the United States, in my hometown, Cleveland, on the West Side, in the Triangle district there, where he lived and grew up. Rowan Gillespie is going to do a very, very good job for the city of New York.

Gentlemen, for those of you who have to catch a train and would like to skedaddle before the Glee Club sings, I would ask you to please take your leave right now. For those of you who will remain, I would ask you to please be temperate in your comments, a little bit quiet.

I would now ask Kevin Faughey to please come to the podium and tell us about this night's presentation.

MR. KEVIN FAUGHEY: I would like to thank everyone who will stay to hear the Glee Club tonight. Those of you who are staying to hear the Glee Club tonight, we have a wonderful program for you. The first song that we are going to sing will be “The Black Velvet Band,” which is an Irish folksong. Then we’ll sing “The Battle Hymn of the Republic” by Willhousky. We will sing “We’ll Meet Again,” by Parker and Charles. We will have a solo by the two Harleys, Ray and his son Eddie, singing “Save the Bones for Henry Jones,” by Barker, Lee, and Jones. We are going to end with “The Lost Chord.”

Again I want to thank everybody who is staying. Enjoy the Glee Club. Thank you.

(Glee Club performance)

MR. FAUGHEY: We are going to end our season by singing “The Lost Chord.” This is a tradition, that the Glee Club sings “The Lost Chord” every year as our last song. We have had a very successful season. We hope you enjoy that.

But before we do that, I just want to make mention of a very special person who is in our Glee Club. If I could just bring Jerry Lenahan forward for one second.

I want to announce that in this year, 2015, Jerry is celebrating his fiftieth anniversary with the Glee Club. He joined in 1965. He has thrilled us with his voice many, many times over the years. He has sung some fabulous solos. I am very happy that he is still with us, even though he is going to cut back a little bit now. His son-in-law is bringing him in from New Jersey, but he is going to still continue to sing with us at our concerts.

I just thought I would let you members of the Society know. We honored Jerry last week at our public concert at the Church of the Epiphany. I just thought I would let the Society members know tonight that Jerry is celebrating his fiftieth anniversary.

(Applause)

We are going to sing “The Lost Chord” now. I hope you enjoy it — I’m sorry, I always tend to forget David. David, would you please stand and take a bow.

(Applause)

The only reason why I tend to forget him is because I just don't always see him over there.

So we’ll sing “The Lost Chord.”

(Glee Club performance)

PRESIDENT WALTON: Gentlemen, please remain standing as we sing our National Anthem.

(Singing of the National Anthem)

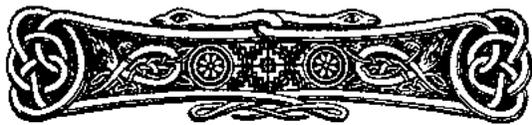

PRESIDENT WALTON: Gentlemen, I will entertain a motion to adjourn the meeting.

(A motion to adjourn the meeting was moved and seconded.)

All in favor.

(Chorus of “Ayes”)

Good night. Drive home safely.

REGULAR STATED MEETING

held at

The Princeton Club

New York, New York

November 16, 2015

---

The Regular Stated Meeting of the Society of the Friendly Sons of Saint Patrick in the City of New York, held on Monday November 15, 2015, at The Princeton Club, 15 West 43rd Street, New York City, was called to order by the President of the Society, John C. Walton.

PRESIDENT JOHN C. WALTON: Good evening, gentlemen. I call this meeting of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in the City of New York to order. I would ask our Glee Club to open the meeting with the singing of “The Hail of the Friendly Sons.”

(“The Hail of the Friendly Sons” was performed by the Glee Club.)

PRESIDENT WALTON: Gentlemen, I would ask Monsignor Michael Reid to come forward. Of course, this year, 2015, is a very important year for lawyers. To say something which combines the ecclesiastical with the legal profession, this is the 800th anniversary of the church ending trial by ordeal.

Well, I don’t know how that fits, but Monsignor Reid.

MSGR. MICHAEL J. REID: Gentlemen, let us pray.

Tonight we ask our Father’s blessing, first and foremost, upon the people of France, those who have lost their lives, their families, and to the nation of France. We ask the Lord to bless them.

We ask the Lord to bless our country, America, to bless our roots in Ireland. We ask for world peace.

On a lighter note, tonight we ask the Lord’s blessings upon those of us who are gathered here, upon the food we share, to give us an evening of friendship and of good cheer.

We pray always in the name of Christ our Lord. Amen.

PRESIDENT WALTON: Gentlemen, the formal part of our meeting will convene after dinner. Thank you.

(Dinner was served.)

PRESIDENT WALTON: Gentlemen, I would like now to begin our meeting. I would recognize our Secretary, John Coleman, for the purpose of reading the minutes of the May meeting.

MR. JOHN A. COLEMAN, III: Mr. President, I recommend that we dispense with the reading of the minutes and that they be accepted into the record as prepared.

PRESIDENT WALTON: Do I hear a second to the motion?

(The motion was seconded.)

I would now like to recognize our Treasurer, Tom Sullivan, to render his report, please.

MR. THOMAS H. SULLIVAN: Thank you, Mr. President, fellow Friendly Sons.

As reported at the conclusion of my last report to you in May, the cash on hand as of May 1 was $241,428. Since then, our receipts up until October 31 of 2015 have been $55,026, for a total of cash on hand plus receipts of $296,454. During the same period, May 1 through October 31, our disbursements have been $136,211, leaving us with cash on hand in our general fund as of October 31 of $164,244.

As to our capital fund, the market value of the fund's investments as of October 31, 2015, comes to $2,505,935.

Thank you, gentlemen.

PRESIDENT WALTON: Gentlemen, may I have a motion that the Treasurer's report as rendered be approved?

(A motion to accept the Treasurer's report was made and seconded.)

All in favor.

(Chorus of "Ayes")

Opposed.

(No response)

The motion is carried.

Now it is my sad duty to read the names of the members who have passed away since our last meeting: Gerald P. Murphy, Thomas B. Galligan, John Kiely, Gerald H. McGinley, E. Virgil Conway, and James Mulvihill.

Committees will be appointed to prepare suitable memorials to be published in our yearbook. If you know of any of the deceased members, please contact our Historian, Michael Doyle.

I would say in passing that Jerry McGinley was a personal friend of mine, a neighbor not too far away in Short Hills, and a great supporter of mine in the early stages of my career at Citibank, when he was an institutional salesman.

I would now ask you please to rise and observe a moment of silence in memory of our deceased members.

(A moment of silence was observed.)

Thank you, gentlemen.

As Monsignor Reid so eloquently stated, I would also ask that you remember in your prayers our Almoner, John Fitzsimons, who was diagnosed with brain cancer just a few weeks ago and is undergoing chemotherapy, I believe at Memorial Sloan Kettering. John has been a very good friend over these past several years. I would ask that you pray for his quick recovery.

I would now like to recognize the Chairman of the Admissions Committee, Lawrence Cooke, to please give his report.

MR. LAWRENCE H. COOKE II: Thank you, Mr. President.

The Admissions Committee met on November 16 and recommends the election of the following individuals to active membership: Joseph Ali, Jack Barry, Robert Bickford, Jr., Thomas Blaney, Terry Burd, Noel Burke, David Casey, William Clifford, Brendan Constant, Brian Scott, Michael Dillon, Thomas Dwyer, Mark FitzPatrick, William Foley, Thomas Gilchrist, Patrick Gordon, Robert Gordon, John Grenawalt, Kevin Grenawalt, Edmund Hartnett, Kevin Healy, Mark Hyland, George Irish, John McWilliams IV, Arthur Minson, Thomas Monaghan, Connor Nugent, John O'Neill, Jr., Christopher O'Rourke, Damien Quinn, Timothy Rooney, Jr., Thomas Ryan, Barrett Touhy, Kevin Touhy, and Michael Vanrossem.

These are the members that we propose for membership.

PRESIDENT WALTON: Gentlemen, may I entertain a motion to accept the report of the Admissions Committee?

(A motion to accept the report of the Admissions Committee was made and seconded.)

All in favor.

(Chorus of “Ayes”)

Opposed

(No response)

I can remember that line from The Honeymooners: How long have you known the applicant? Too long.

I would ask that Chairman John Waldron of the Charities Committee please step forward to give his report.

MR. JOHN C. WALDRON: Thank you, Mr. President.

As I reported at the January general meeting, the Committee on Charities met to determine the organizations to receive grants for the 2014-2015 fiscal year. As approved at last November’s stated meeting, up to $200,000 was available for distribution. There were requests submitted by fifty-four organizations. Five were first-time or new submissions. After review and follow-up by the committee, thirty-seven grants were approved and we fully allocated the $200,000.

At this time, it is requested that the Committee on Charities be authorized to approve grants for the 2015-2016 year ending March 16, 2016, again totaling up to $200,000.

PRESIDENT WALTON: I would request that a member re-submit a motion to allow $200,000 for the 2016 year.

(A motion to authorize the Committee on Charities to approve grants for $200,000 was made and seconded.)

All in favor.

(Chorus of “Ayes”)

In new business, I would entertain a motion from the floor that the stipend to the Glee Club in the amount of $25,000 be approved. May I hear a motion from the floor?

(A motion to approve the stipend to the Glee Club was made and seconded.)

All in favor.

(Chorus of “Ayes”)

Opposed.

(No response)

I have a little bit of new business. As I said in an email, in the past two years, I have received expressions of interest from several members requesting the Society to organize a golf outing to Ireland. The topic was discussed at the Board of Officers meeting several months ago. Our Audit Committee member, Gary Sheehan, has organized outings in the past and has indicated that for a cost of $3,700 we would be able to play ten courses over seven days. The trip would be Friday night to the following Saturday. It would include airfare, hotels, breakfast, transportation, etc., and would take place in early September 2016. If you have any interest, please contact our office manager, Jackie McCarthy.

On November 22, this upcoming Sunday, a statue commemorating Bishop Hughes will be unveiled at Old St. Patrick’s. I will send a reminder email out to refresh the details.

It has been brought to my attention by former President Bob Reilly that there is a movie which would be of much interest to members of the Society. It is called The Bridge of Spies. It is a Cold War historical drama, espionage thriller, directed by Steven Spielberg, with Academy Award-winning actor Tom Hanks playing the lead role as James B. Donovan, a New York lawyer. Donovan was entrusted with negotiating the release of Francis Powers, U-2 plane pilot who was shot down over the Soviet Union, in exchange for Rudolf Abel, who was a KGB spy in the United States.

As Bob points out, and the reason I bring this up is that the hero of the story, James B. Donovan, was a graduate of Fordham College, was a longtime member of the Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick. He served for several years as the Chairman of our Charities Committee. He was revered among the members of our Society and, at his passing, his funeral mass and eulogy were delivered by Father Robert I. Gannon, S.J., who was a former President of Fordham and the man who holds the honor as the second-most frequent speaker at our dinners.

So I think viewing this movie would be a really great idea.

To get to the business of the meeting, in accordance with the bylaws of the Society, the annual election of officers is to take place at the meeting, and the report of the Nominating Committee, which was appointed at the May meeting, was sent to the membership together with notice of the meeting. I now call upon Mark Codd, the Nominating Committee Chairman, for his report.

MR. MARK B. CODD: Thank you, Jack.

On the evening of September 14, 2015, the Nominating Committee met and we nominated the following individuals to be voted for as officers of the Society for the ensuing year. Let me present to you the results of the meeting: for President, Matthew T. McLaughlin; for First Vice President, Kevin J. Rooney; for Second Vice President, John A. Coleman III; for Treasurer, Thomas H. Sullivan; for Secretary, Peter D. McGuire; for Almoner, John J. Fitzsimons, and for Historian, Michael F. Doyle.

PRESIDENT WALTON: Thank you, Mark.

I would ask the Secretary to cast one ballot for the election of the members as recommended.

MR. JOHN A. COLEMAN III: So voted.

PRESIDENT WALTON: So it is passed.

Mark, may I ask you to escort Kevin Rooney and John Coleman to the podium? I will ask Kevin Rooney to present the Second Vice President's medal to John Coleman.

(The presentation was made.)

PRESIDENT WALTON: Mark, I would ask you now to escort Matt McLaughlin to the podium. Matt McLaughlin will present the First Vice President's medal to Kevin Rooney.

(The presentation was made.)

MR. MATTHEW T. MCLAUGHLIN: Buffed and polished for two full years.

PRESIDENT WALTON: I have two presentations to make to Matt McLaughlin. First, fifty years ago a book was published recording the history of the Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick from 1784 to that date. It is an excellent history of New York City and New York State. I have a copy of this book, which, by tradition, has been signed by many of the former presidents, and now I present it to Matt McLaughlin, to which he shall add his own signature and he shall hold it during his term of office and for his successors.

Finally, I am not going to use the words of Charlton Heston, “You won’t get this gun out of my hands,” but I am going to present to you the medallion of President of the Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in the City of New York.

Gentlemen, I present to you the eighty-seventh President of the Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, Matthew T. McLaughlin.

(Applause)

I would just like to say that it has been an extreme honor to serve as President of the Society. We have had some wonderful speakers. Dame Blood may have spoken a bit too long, and my friend Tommy Corrigan may have focused on the Midwest a bit too much. Bill Duggan talked to us about Dagger John Hughes.

The big challenge for Matt, obviously, is to secure speakers for our annual March 17 dinner. Believe me, that is no small task.

I would like to express my gratitude to the officers and committee chairs who have served so admirably in the past two years, to the Ziminskys, who have shepherded our funds so well, to the Glee Club under the direction of Kevin Faughey and David Ralph as accompanist, and also to Jackie McCarthy, who is the institutional memory of the Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick. Thank you very much.

(Applause)

PRESIDENT MATTHEW T. MCLAUGHLIN: Thank you, Jack, for that delightful ceremony. I am deeply, deeply proud to be part of this history. Thank you very much, gentlemen, for this extraordinary honor. It is a great privilege for any Irish American to call himself the President of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick of the City of New York. Thank you.

Let me begin with a retinue of thank-yous by noting that I am deeply grateful to the members of the Nominating Committee for the faith it took to name me as your next President. I am truly honored.

Our recent former President, Mr. Walton, gave me a surprisingly gracious introduction. I can see from your faces that most of you are surprised at the generosity of that introduction. I don’t really blame you for being surprised, given the hostility of the recent election contest. It is a rare thing indeed for a political opponent like Mr. Walton to be so gracious in defeat, especially after so close an election. For those of you paying attention, you may just have noticed that I was elected by a mere one vote.

Jack leaves this office with a tremendous reputation for integrity and character and, most importantly, humility. But I will tell you now, he is a very hard man and a bitter opponent. It is a well-publicized fact that during our hotly contested election, Jack did indeed say very many cruel things about me. But they will not be repeated for the next two years. I will say, to Jack's credit, that when he saw the futility of opposing me, he did become cheerfully helpful. He has agreed to turn over the keys of our palatial office of the Friendly Sons, and I am now in full possession, custody, and control of his medal, which, I must say, feels and looks like a hubcap.

Jack and I have shaken hands, and he is cooperating with my transition team. He has allowed his department heads to meet my taskforces, and with my agreement to retain several of his key people in high — and, of course, highly compensated — offices, I can assure you we are in the process of effecting a very smooth transition at the Friendly Sons.

Enough levity. I know that I have enormous shoes to fill. My predecessor, Jack Walton, is a giant among men. We will have a formal tribute to Jack in January, but while I have you partially listening to me, I will tell you tonight that I could not ask for a better mentor than my friend Jack Walton.

Jack, please allow me to be among the first to wish you well in your post-presidency years at the Friendly Sons. Within minutes, Jack will be back in the fold of his beloved Glee Club. I know I speak for everyone in the room tonight when I say that I look forward to seeing and hearing Jack Walton at the Friendly Sons for decades to come.

(Applause)

I am also blessed to have so many past presidents that I can call my friends, from Reynolds through Fitzsimons, Reilly, Smith, Murphy, O'Brien, Codd, and now Walton, I stand on the shoulders of giants. On so many phone calls, strategy sessions at lunch, dinner, white-wine afternoons, and elsewhere, these men have been my mentors.

Gentlemen, presidents never fully retire from the Friendly Sons. They continue to guide the Society by lending their good judgment and their energy to the current president as he manages the affairs of the Friendly Sons.

There is another thanks. There is a man sitting not too far away from me, the second table away. He is a handsome-looking gentleman. Some say he has the blood of a leprechaun. Some say he has the heart of an angel. Some say he has the heart of a devil. After 8:00, it is always the heart of the devil. Ray Teatum.

(Applause)

Ray moved for my admission two decades ago and has been the fuel behind my ascent at the Friendly Sons. I am personally deeply grateful to Ray. So thank you, Ray.

Lastly, gentlemen, I would like to thank the members of the committees who do the hard, granular work that makes the Friendly Sons actually run. It seems like it sort of randomly falls together, but all of this work is done by the many members of the boards. I want to thank the members themselves and the committee chairmen for all of their hard work. It has been an honor to work with you for the last four years as Second Vice and First Vice, and I am delighted to work with you again in the next two years.

I am a part of history now. I stand here with this medal so heavy on my shoulders. But I want to give you one small vignette of my own history as I close tonight. As I stand before you as President of this great Society, it is an overwhelming experience. As many of you know, we were founded in 1784. Two hundred years later, in 1983, I stood in my kitchen as I watched my father adjust my older brother Joe's bowtie. Joe, you see, is five years older than I, and my father was taking him to the Friendly Sons dinner. It is a little bit of a Cinderella story, but I am here finally. From that day on, from 1983 onwards, the Friendly Sons was to me a magical, prestigious, and wonderful organization. Now, some thirty years later, I am humbled to be the President of this esteemed Society.

Gentlemen, I will serve you and the Society to the absolute best of my abilities. Thank you.

(Applause)

Our immediate past President is still bossing me around. He has told me that it is my duty, as my first act as President, to ask for a stipend for the Glee Club. The stipend apparently is $25,000. Can I have a motion for that stipend?

(A motion to authorize the stipend was made and seconded.)

All in favor.

(Chorus of “Ayes”)

Thank you, gentlemen.

It is my privilege to undertake my second act as President. I hereby invite Kevin Faughey to lead the Glee Club with tonight’s musical program.

MR. KEVIN FAUGHEY: Good evening, gentlemen. Tonight we will be starting with the very popular “What Shall We Do with the Drunken Sailor?” by Marshall Bartholomew. From there we will go into the very beautiful “Barcarolle” from The Tales of Hoffmann by Offenbach. After that, we will have a soloist, Jim Keaney, who will sing “All Through the Night.” The Club will then end by singing “The Shan Van Voght,” by Horatio Parker.

We are now going to sing “What Shall We Do with a Drunken Sailor?”

(Glee Club performance)

MR. FAUGHEY: Now Jim Keaney will sing “All Through the Night.”

(Solo performance by Jim Keaney)

MR. FAUGHEY: For our last composition, we will sing “The Shan Van Voght.” I know when I mentioned that name before, at least some of you said, “What the hell does that mean?” Shan van voght is Gaelic, and it means “the poor old woman.” It is a reference to Ireland. You will hear the words to the song as you go along. You will see what it is. Every time you hear shan van voght, think of “the poor old woman.” It will make more sense.

(Glee Club performance)

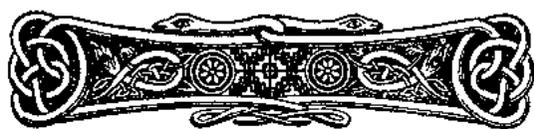

PRESIDENT MCLAUGHLIN: Thank you, Kevin. Thank you, members of the Glee Club.

Can we all rise and join the Glee Club, please, in the singing of our nation’s National Anthem?

(Singing of the National Anthem)

PRESIDENT MCLAUGHLIN: Gentlemen, thank you very much. We stand adjourned until our January meeting. Happy Thanksgiving and Merry Christmas.

(Adjourn: 8:26 p.m.)

CHARITIES OF THE SOCIETY

The Society was founded in 1784 “for the relief of natives of Ireland, or descendants of natives of Ireland, as may become indigent and poor... or to the making of grants to such charitable, educational or religious organizations as are exempt from taxation...to assist them in relief of the indigent and poor” in the City of New York. The Society makes contributions to a variety of organizations that assist New Yorkers in need in fulfillment of its mission, including several Irish charitable and cultural organizations, Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of New York, New York educational institutions, soup kitchens, bread lines and shelters, hospitals and health care institutions.

The enlargement of the Society’s Charitable Funds will permit more generous distributions in fulfillment of the Society’s purposes, and Members are encouraged to consider personal donations and bequests in their estate planning.

The Hail of The Friendly Sons

Shall we who meet and part to-night
Remember not our sires ?
Shall we forget their age-long fight,
Their quenchless battle-fires?
They handed us the freedom-flame
That spreads from sea to sea.
They bade it burn in Ireland's name,
Till land and race are free.
And we feel the thrill of their mighty hail,
It comes with the boom of the guns
A heart and a hand for our fair land,
The hail of the Friendly Sons.

WORDS BY THE LATE J. I. C. CLARKE
MUSIC BY THE LATE VICTOR HERBERT
FORMER PRESIDENTS OF THE SOCIETY

E. VIRGIL CONWAY

Edmund Virgil Conway, an Active Member of the Society who joined in 2000 was born to E. Virgil Conway, Jr. and Dorothea Brandes Conway on August 2, 1929 in Southampton NY and grew up in Montauk, NY, in the Upper Shepherd's Neck area. His grandfather, John Conway, was born in Ireland.

Virgil lived an outdoor life as a boy, fishing duck-hunting and swimming. He was one of the town's first Eagle Scouts. His father was a founding member of the Montauk Community Church and he attended and supported it throughout his life.

He graduated from East Hampton High School in 1947 where he was the Valedictorian. He graduated magna cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa from Colgate University in 1951. He graduated cum laude from Yale Law School in 1956, and was awarded an honorary degrees from Pace University in 1990 and from the State University of New York at Stony Brook in 1998. Virgil served as a Captain in the United States Air Force during the Korean War, and afterwards in the US Air Force Reserve.

In 1969, he married Elaine Wingate and they made their home in Bronxville NY, where he served as an Elder in the Reformed Church of Bronxville and was involved with the Boy Scouts.

In the course of his career in both the public and private sectors, he was chairman and chief executive officer of the Seaman's Bank for Savings for 20 years, starting in 1968. He was a board member of a number of corporations, among them Union Pacific, Consolidated Edison and the Atlantic Mutual Insurance Company. He was deputy superintendent of the New York State Banking Department, and chairman of the New York City Housing Partnership, and on the Board of the New York State Thruway Authority. He was the Chairman of the Audit Committee of the City of New York. He served as Chairman of the Metropolitan Transit Authority where he was a significant leader in the planning and construction of the Grand Central Station access from the LIRR, and the Second Avenue subway.

He loved the Friendly Sons and especially the Anniversary Dinners, where he was usually seated with his great friend, Jim Gill, and as a history buff, reveled in its over two century's of history in the City of New York.

The Society extends its deep sympathy to his family, Allison Conway Worthington, Sarah Lindner Conway, William Wingate Gay and John Lawrence Gay.

EDWARD CARDINAL EGAN

His Eminence Reverend Cardinal Edward Egan, the retired Archbishop of New York, and an Honorary Member of the Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in the City of New York since 2002, died on March 5, 2015. He was 77 years of age.

Edward Michael Egan was born April 2, 1932 in Oak Park, IL to Thomas J. and Genevieve Costello Egan. His parents' families were from County Mayo and County Clare, Ireland. In 1943, both he and his older brother contracted polio and both missed two years of schooling. Edward graduated from Archbishop Quigley Preparatory School in 1951, and graduated from St. Mary of the Lake Seminary. He continued his education at the Pontifical North American College in Rome where he was ordained in 1957, and received his doctorate in Canon Law from the Gregorian University in Rome.

He was named an Auxiliary Bishop and Vicar for Education of New York in 1985, and became the Bishop of Bridgeport CT in 1988. Upon the death of Cardinal John O'Connor, he was appointed the 9th Archbishop of New York, and a year later its 7th Cardinal.

Cardinal Egan was the shepherd of New York at the time of the September 11, 2001 attacks on the World Trade Center and he spent countless hours comforting families and New Yorkers grieving the great loss of life, and serving the needs of the 413 parishes of the Archdiocese. In addition, he was a magnificent administrator of a very large, complex and financially struggling Archdiocese, and he helped return the operation to a sound fiscal basis.

He loved the Society of the Friendly Sons of Saint Patrick and reveled in offering the Invocation at the Anniversary Dinner each year, and enjoying the company of hundreds of friends and admirers.

The Society extends its deepest sympathy to his family and to his brother priests on his death. A Mass of Resurrection was offered at Saint Patrick's Cathedral.

THOMAS B. GALLIGAN

Thomas Bernard Galligan, a Life Member of the Society having joined in 1978, died on July 30, 2015, at the age of 90. Thomas was born in Manhattan, and lived at times there and also lived for a period in the Bronx. He had two sisters, Mary Galligan and Sr. Rose Marie Galligan, SC.

Tom graduated from the College of the Holy Cross in 1944 where he had been part of the US Naval Reserve. He served in the Second World War as a Lieutenant in the Navy and was involved in the invasions of Okinawa and the Philippines where he commanded an amphibious craft that ferried soldiers ashore under fire and kamikaze attack.

Returning to the States he entered St. John's University School of Law, then located on Joralemon Street in Brooklyn, and he received his degree in 1950. He practiced law in New York and eventually served as a law clerk for two Justices of the Supreme Court of New York. Tom was elected in 1959 as a Judge of the Municipal Court of New York City. In 1974, he was appointed to the New York City Criminal Court by Mayor Abraham D. Beame, and in 1977 designated as an Acting Justice of the New York State Supreme Court for New York County where he served 17 years, retiring in 1994.

Judge Galligan was a past member of the Advisory Board of Marist College. He was a member of the Board of Trustees of Daytop Village Rehabilitation Facility, and of the New York Foundling Hospital. He also served as a member of the New York State Appellate Division Screening Panel for Capital Defenders Oversight Committee of the Indigent Defense Organization for the First Department, and for the Appellate Division's Disciplinary Committee for attorney's. He was very highly regarded by his colleagues on the bench and respected by the attorneys who appeared before him for his knowledge, decorum and sense of fairness.

He was a very loyal member of the Friendly Sons attending every Stated Meeting and Anniversary Dinner. He was also a member of the American Irish Historical Society and at one point served as the financial secretary for the St. Patrick's Day Parade Committee. He was a faithful and devoted member of his parish.

A Mass of Christian Burial was offered for him at St. Margaret of Cortona Church in Riverdale and burial was at Calvary Cemetery in Queens.

The Society extends its deep sympathy to his remaining relatives and many friends.

JOHN E. KIELY

John Edward Kiely, a Life Member of the Society since 1966, died on August 25, 2105. He was 95 years of age.

John was born on December 11, 1910 to Joseph and Elizabeth McByrne Kiely in Jersey City, NJ. His father, Joseph, was born in Clonbanin, County Cork.

Jack graduated from Fordham College at Rose Hill in 1940 and served as a naval officer in the North Atlantic in the Second World War. After the war, and on behalf of his mother, he managed a bar and grill, located on 42nd Street in Manhattan that had been established by his father. When its building was razed in the mid 1950s, Jack began his career as a liquor salesman for Peerless Importers. He also worked, starting in this period, for the New York Times as a mailer, which he continued into the 1970s.

His first wife, Marion, predeceased Jack, in 1984. They had been married for 39 years and together had five children—Joseph, Brian, Maureen, Patricia and Eileen. In 1986, Jack married Catherine Kelly, who along with her late husband, Nick, had been close friends with Marion and Jack. Kay and Nick’s children—Eileen, Kathy, Joann, Nick Paul, Patty and Maureen—became Jack’s stepchildren, and the family expanded from there with a total of 36 grandchildren and great grandchildren at the time of his death. Jack’s life was entwined with both halves of his family and he enjoyed every minute of it. They made their home in Island Park, NY.

Jack was involved in many community and volunteer activities. He enjoyed golf. He also enjoyed singing and sang with the church choir and choral group. He had a tenor voice. He also volunteered at Mercy Hospital. A Mass of Christian Burial was offered at Sacred Heart Church in Island Park and burial was at Calvary Cemetery.

The Society extends its deep sympathy to his large and loving family.

GERALD H. MCGINLEY

Gerald Hayes McGinley, a Life Member of the Friendly Sons having joined in 1964, died on February 23, 2015. He was 85 years of age.

Gerry was born on October 14, 1929. He earned his Bachelor of Science in economics degree from the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania in 1952. He joined his older brother, Edward, at Penn and his younger brother, Richard, would join them there. While at Penn he belonged to Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, and the Newman Club, and the Sphinx Senior Society.

Hailed by the legendary Penn football coach, George Munger, as “the greatest linebacker in the country,” Gerry won the prestigious Class of 1915 Award for the ideal Penn athlete, and earned All-American honors in his senior season. He was drafted by the Philadelphia Eagles in 1952, but instead chose to serve his country as a tank commander and rose to the rank of First Lieutenant in the United States Army during the Korean War.

After finishing his tour in the Army he returned home and married Patricia O’Neill in 1957, and she remained the love of his life for their 58 years of marriage. They made their home in Short Hills, NJ where they raised their five children and where they were members of St. Rose of Lima parish.

His investment career spanned 45 years. He began work at WR Grace & Co. as an Assistant to the President, and later worked at Crown Cork & Seal Co. Gerry went on to dedicate 3 decades of service to Kidder Peabody & Co., and then would devote more years as a Senior Vice President at UBS, the Swiss financial services company, until his retirement at age 80. They then made their home in Hobe Sound FL.

Gerry was active in many community and educational activities and served as Treasurer for the Malta Human Services Foundation and served as a Trustee for both the New Community Foundation and Camp Tecumseh in Center Harbor, NH. He served on the Council for The Pennsylvania Society, and on the Millburn Board of Education, and as a Trustee of Avon Old Farms School.

The Society extends its sympathy to his wife, Patricia, and to their children, Pam, John, Helen, Gerry and Mark, and to his grandchildren, and to his brothers, Edward and Rick.

JAMES F. MURPHY, III

James F. Murphy, a Life Member of the Society having joined in 1956, died on April 22, 2015. He was 85 years of age.

James was born in Brooklyn on August 10, 1929 and raised in Rockville Centre, NY. Jim graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1955.

After three years in the Army, he joined a business co-founded by his father, and had an over 50 year career in the dredging, ship repair, and real estate industries, serving as President and Chairman of the Board of several companies, including New York Shipyard Corp. in Red Hook, Brooklyn.

On November 24, 1962, Jim married Helen Marie Fagan and together they raised their five children in Rockville Centre and then Garden City, LI. Jim was predeceased by his wife, and by his son, James F. Murphy IV on September 11, 2001, and is survived by his four daughters, Kathleen Murphy Alcock (Mark) of Garden City, Elizabeth Cooke (Dan) of Glen Head, NY, Helen M. Sweeney of Sea Cliff, NY, and Kristin Hubschman (Jon) of Rockville Centre, NY, his daughter in law, Jeanine Kelly Murphy, and nine grandchildren.

A man of deep integrity, understated wit, and a deep sense of family and tradition, a Mass of Christian Burial was held at St. Joseph's RC Church, Garden City, followed by interment at Holy Rood Cemetery in Westbury.

The Society extends its deepest sympathy to the Murphy family.

AN ACT to incorporate the Society of the Friendly Sons of Saint Patrick, in the City of New-York. Passed February 13, 1827.

WHEREAS, the members of a society instituted for the relief of indigent natives of Ireland, and their descendants, have petitioned the legislature for an act of incorporation, the better to enable them to obtain the objects of their association; Therefore

1. Be it enacted by the People of the State of New-York, represented in Senate and Assembly, That John Chambers, James McBride, James Magee, Alexander Charters, John Montgomery, John Cauldwell and Daniel McCormick, and such other persons as now are or hereafter shall become members of the society of the friendly sons of Saint Patrick, in the city of New-York, are hereby constituted and declared a body politic and corporate, in fact and in name, by the name of “The Society of the Friendly Sons of Saint Patrick in the City of New-York,” and by that name they and their successors, during the existence of the said corporation, shall and may have perpetual succession; and shall in law be capable of suing and being sued, pleading and being impleaded, answering and being answered unto, defending and being defended, in all courts and places whatsoever; and that they and their successors may have and use a common seal, and may change and alter the same from time to time at their pleasure; and also that by their corporate name, and in their corporate capacity, they and their successors may purchase, take, hold, use and enjoy, sell, lease and convey any estate, real or personal, for the use and benefit of said corporation.

2. And be it further enacted, That the said corporation shall have power to make such constitution, by-laws and regulations, as they shall judge proper, for the appointment of officers, for the admission of new members, for the government of the officers and members thereof, for collecting annual contributions from the members towards the funds thereof, for regulating the times and places of meeting of the said society, for suspending or expelling such members as shall neglect or refuse to comply with the by-laws or regulations, and for the managing and directing the property, affairs and concerns of said society: Provided, That such constitution, by-laws and regulations be not inconsistent with the Laws or constitution of this state, or of the United States: Provided further, That the said corporation shall not engage in any banking business, nor dispose of any of its funds except for its corporate purposes, namely the relief of such members of the said Society, natives of Ireland, and descendants of natives of Ireland or of a member of said Society, as may become indigent and poor, or the making of grants to such charitable, educational or religious organizations as are exempt from taxation under the internal revenue laws of the United States to assist them in relief of the indigent and poor.

3. And be it further enacted, That the present officers of said society shall hold their respective offices until others shall be chosen in their places.

4. And be it further enacted, That this Act be, and hereby is declared to be, a public act, and that the same shall be construed in all courts and places, benignly and favourably for every beneficial purpose therein intended, and that no misnomer of the said corporation in any deed, gift, grant, device or other instrument of contract or conveyance shall vitiate or defeat the same: Provided, The corporation shall be sufficiently described to ascertain the intention of the parties.

5. And be it further enacted, That the legislature may at any time hereafter amend, alter, modify or repeal this act.

(Laws of New York 1827, chapter 42, as amended by Certificate of Amendment filed by the Department of State, State of New York, on December 29, 1975.)

BY - LAWS

(As amended to December 09, 2010)

ARTICLE I

NAME AND SEAL OF THE SOCIETY

SEC.1. The name of the Society is "THE SOCIETY OF THE FRIENDLY SONS OF SAINT PATRICK IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK."

SEC.2. The seal of this Society shall be an Irish Harp, with the motto: "Erin Go Bragh."

ARTICLE II MEMBERSHIP

SEC.1. There shall be five classes of membership: (1) Active, (2) Life, (3) Veteran, (4) Honorary, and (5) Armed Services. The number of active members shall be limited to one thousand (exclusive of the members referred to in Section 8 of this Article II) and the number of life members to four hundred.

SEC.2. Gentlemen of the age of twenty-one years and over, citizens or legal residents of the United States of America, being natives or descendants of natives of Ireland, and of good moral character, shall be eligible for admission to active or life membership.

SEC.3. All members, except those in the classes of Honorary and Armed Services, shall be entitled to vote and hold office.

ACTIVE MEMBERS

SEC.4. The initiation fee and the annual dues shall be at amounts established by the Officers from time to time. The annual dues shall be payable on Saint Patrick's Day in each year for the year then ensuing. The Officers may elect from time to time in their discretion to waive the initiation fee or permit installment payments.

SEC.5. An application for active membership shall be in writing, on the form prescribed setting forth the name, age and business, profession or occupation of the applicant, the facts showing him to be a native or a descendant of a native of Ireland, his places of residence and of business, profession or occupation and such other facts as the Committee on Admissions shall prescribe as indicative of his eligibility for membership shall be signed by the applicant. Such application shall bear the signatures of two members, one as proposer and the other as seconder, and shall be filed with the Secretary who shall refer it to the Committee on Admissions. The Secretary shall send to the membership, with the notice of the next stated meeting, a list of all applications since the notice of the last stated meeting. Unless the Board of Officers determines otherwise, one-half of the initiation fee shall be paid when the application is filed with the Secretary. If a person is not elected to membership, this portion of the initiation fee shall be refunded.

SEC. 6. The Committee on Admissions shall consider each application and may require from the applicant such additional written or oral statements as the Committee deems desirable. The Committee, in its sole judgment, shall have the right to accept or decline any applicant.

The Committee, in recommending applicants for election, may give preference to sons and grandsons of those who are or were active or life members.

If the Committee acts favorably upon an application, it shall so report to the Society at a stated meeting at which there shall be a vacancy to be filled in the roster of active members and the Society shall proceed to vote on the election of such applicant.

SEC. 7. Each new active member shall qualify by paying the remainder of the then current initiation fee and dues at the then prescribed amount promptly upon notification of his election. Failure to so qualify shall invalidate his election. If such new member be elected at the January stated meeting, such dues shall be in payment of the dues for the year commencing the following Saint Patrick's Day.

SEC.8. Active members serving in the Armed Services of the United States of America shall, during the time of war or armed combat or until their discharge during the time of war or armed combat from such service, be exempt from the payment of annual dues until Saint Patrick's Day following the termination of such war or discharge; but the suspension of dues may be further extended by vote of the Officers.

These members shall not be included, either before or after the termination of the war or their discharge, in the limit for active members described in Section 1 of this Article II. Loss of membership in the ranks of these members shall not be treated as vacancies to be filled.

SEC.9. An active member who shall be in arrears for dues for a period greater than one year or a member who shall be indebted to the Society for a sum exceeding the amount of dues for one year, unless the Committee on Admissions determines otherwise, shall forfeit his membership and his name shall be removed from the roster of the Society. A member whose name has been so removed may be required to pay all dues and other indebtedness incurred to the date of such removal.

LIFE MEMBERS

SEC. 10. Only an Active Member who has attained the age of fifty-five and paid annual dues for at least twenty years may be considered for Life Membership. An application for Life Membership shall be signed by the applicant. If the Committee on Admissions acts favorably on an application for admission to Life Membership it shall so report to the Society at a stated meeting at which there shall be a vacancy, to be filled in the roster of life members and the Society may elect such applicant to Life Membership, conditioned upon the payment on a one-time basis of four hundred dollars which shall be in lieu of the payment thereafter of any annual dues. There shall be no refund of any annual dues paid prior to the date of such election.

VETERAN MEMBERS

SEC. 11. An active member who has attained the age of seventy years, and has paid dues for twenty-five years may, upon his application, be transferred, with the approval of the Committee on Admissions, to the veteran class, with all the rights and privileges of an active member and shall thereafter be exempt from the further payment of dues.

HONORARY MEMBERS

SEC. 12. Honorary membership may hereafter be conferred by the Society if the following requirements and conditions be fulfilled:

- (a) The person proposed shall be of Irish birth or descended in a direct line from an Irish ancestor.
- (b) The person proposed shall have rendered some conspicuous service to the United States of America, to the City of New York, to Ireland or to the Irish people, or shall have achieved distinction by laudable effort that reflects credit and honor upon the Irish.
- (c) The proposal shall be in writing, signed by at least three members, and set forth the qualifications of the person proposed. It shall be filed with the Secretary who shall refer it to the Committee on Admissions.
- (d) The Committee on Admissions shall inquire into the merits of the proposal and if the Committee acts favorably upon the proposal, it shall so report in writing to the Society at the next stated meeting. Notice of the proposal and of the Committee's report shall be mailed to the members prior to the meeting at which the Committee presents its report. Upon the vote of three fourths of the members present and entitled to vote at a stated meeting, the gentleman proposed shall be enrolled as an honorary member and shall be exempt from initiation fee and annual dues. He shall not be entitled to vote or hold office.

ARMED SERVICES MEMBERS

SEC.13. Armed Services memberships shall include the present members in that class and persons who are or have been in the Armed Services of the United States of America who may be elected as such members as hereinafter provided.

SEC.14. A person may be proposed for Armed Services membership if he fulfills the requirements set forth in Section 2 of this Article II and has rendered some conspicuous or outstanding service in the Armed Services of the United States of America. The proposal shall be in the same form and subject to the same action as set forth in Section 12 (c) and (d) of this Article II for the election of honorary members. An Armed Services member shall be exempt from the initiation fee and annual dues. He shall not be entitled to vote or hold office.

ARTICLE III

OFFICERS AND THEIR ELECTION

SEC.1. The officers of the Society shall be: President, First Vice-President, Second Vice-President, Treasurer, Secretary, Almoner and Historian (who shall collectively constitute the Board of Officers). Any two or more offices may be held by the same person except the offices of President and Secretary.

SEC.2. The officers shall be elected annually at the stated meeting in November from the members entitled to vote.

SEC.3. The Society, at the stated meeting in May in each year, shall elect a Nominating Committee of not less than seven nor more than ten members as proposed by the President. It is desirable that the Committee include the immediate Past President as Chair and two other recent Past Presidents among the membership.

This Committee shall nominate:

- (a) members for the offices to be voted for at the stated meeting in November, and
- (b) in the event of the death, resignation or removal of an officer, other than the President or First Vice-President, a member for the vacant office to be voted for at a meeting of the Society to serve for the unexpired term.

The Nominating Committee, not less than twenty nor more than forty days prior to the stated meeting in November or the meeting at which a vacancy is to be filled, shall mail to each member the names of the candidates to be voted for at the meeting.

SEC.4. Nominations of candidates, other than nominated by the Nominating Committee, shall be signed by not less than thirty members in good standing and delivered to the Secretary in time for him to mail to each member the names of such candidates not less than five nor more than ten days before the stated meeting in November or before the meeting at which the vacancy is to be filled. For purposes of these Bylaws, sending a document by mail shall include posting on the Society's web site or any other form of electronic delivery/access.

SEC.5. Election of officers shall be by ballot or viva voce at the meeting at which the election is held. No nominee may be voted for at any such meeting unless proposed as provided in Sections 3 and 4 of this Article III.

SEC.6. In the event of the death, resignation or removal of any officer, other than the President and First Vice-President, the President may, pending the election to fill the vacancy thus caused, designate a member to perform the duties of the vacant office.

SEC.7. In the event of the temporary absence of an officer, other than the President and First Vice-President, the President may designate a member to perform the duties of such officer temporarily.

SEC.8. Election of officers and of the Nominating Committee shall be by the vote of a majority of the members present and entitled to vote at the meeting at which the election is held.

ARTICLE IV
DUTIES OF OFFICERS

President

SEC. 1. The President shall preside at all meetings and functions of the Society. He shall be the chief executive officer of the Society, and he shall perform all the duties commonly incident to his office and such other duties as the Board of Officers shall assign to him or as are specifically devolved upon him by these Bylaws.

Vice-Presidents

SEC. 2. In the event of the death, resignation or removal of the President, the First Vice-President shall succeed to that office and the Second Vice-President shall succeed to the office of First Vice-President.

The duties of the President shall, in his temporary absence, devolve on the First Vice-President and, in the event of his inability to act, on the Second Vice-President.

Treasurer

SEC. 3. The Treasurer shall keep the moneys and securities of the Society, withdraw such securities from their place or places of deposit and purchase and sell securities, all as provided in Sections 3 and 4 of Article VII. He shall pay all duly incurred obligations of the Society as provided in these Bylaws and make payments of moneys appropriated and of grants directed by the Committee on Charity.

All payments on account of initiation and/or membership fees and dues shall be made payable to the Society.

The Treasurer shall keep, at the offices of the Society, suitable books of account and record therein all receipts and disbursements. Such recording of receipts and disbursements shall be segregated, as they may be applicable to the Capital Fund or General Fund referred to in Sections 1 and 2 of Article VII. The Treasurer shall render at each stated meeting a report of the finances of the Society, setting forth all receipts and disbursements applicable to the Capital and General Funds since the preceding stated meeting and the credit balance of each fund as it then appears. The report rendered at the November stated meeting shall be the Annual Report of the Board of Officers and shall present such other information as is required by law or regulation to be shown in the annual report of a board of directors of a not-for-profit corporation. After the accounts of the Treasurer have been audited by the Committee on Accounts, as provided in Section 8 of Article VI, at the end of the fiscal year, the Treasurer shall prepare and have printed and distributed to the members or to have available to members on the web site of The Society of the Friendly Sons of Saint Patrick in the City of New York an annual financial report in advance of the stated meeting in November.

The Board of Officers may direct the Treasurer to set aside each year from the income of the Society, such amount as the Board determines to be applied to the expenses in connection with the operation of the Society, including the preparation, printing, distribution and/or publication of a history or a part thereof.

The above provisions do not apply to the moneys dispensed by the Almoner or his report.

The Treasurer may be required to indemnify the Society by a surety bond in such amount as shall be stipulated by the Board of Officers from time to time, the cost of which shall be borne by the Society.

Secretary

SEC. 4. The Secretary shall have the custody of all membership and statistical records and journals of the Society and the corporate seal, attend and act as Secretary at all meetings of the Society, the Board of Officers, the Committee on Admissions and the Committee on Charity, assure that minutes are properly taken, and keep a record of the proceedings of such meetings.

The Secretary shall at all times maintain a list of the membership. If any moneys of the Society are received by him, he shall transmit the same promptly to the Treasurer.

The Secretary shall promptly forward to each new member notice of his election and to all members who are in good standing annual membership cards. He shall cause to be prepared and delivered to each member a badge of the Society upon payment of the requisite fee therefor.

The Secretary shall receive and answer all written communications and mail to the members notices of stated or special meetings and other notices required by these Bylaws.

The Secretary shall act as Secretary to the Board of Stewards, issue all tickets for the anniversary dinner (checks for which shall be made to the order of the Society), guest tickets for the stated meetings and other functions of the Society. He shall, at the conclusion of the anniversary dinner or other functions of the Society, submit to the Board of Officers a complete account of all moneys received by him and transmitted to the Treasurer.

The Secretary may be required to indemnify the Society by a surety bond in such amount as shall be stipulated by the Board of Officers from time to time, the cost of which shall be borne by the Society.

Almoner

SEC. 5. The Almoner shall, with the written authorization of the President, the First Vice-President, or the Second Vice-President, dispense in accordance with applicable law the moneys appropriated by the Society to his use for the relief of indigent persons. He shall report to the Society at each stated meeting the amounts received and disbursed by him since the last stated meeting.

Historian

SEC. 6. The Historian shall assemble records, data or documents and endeavor to ascertain facts relating in any way to the activities or accomplishments of the Society or its members in order that a history of the Society may be prepared and a record of the activities or accomplishments of the Society or its members may be preserved. The Historian shall have charge of the preparation of such history. Upon the completion of a history, or a part thereof, he shall submit it to the Board of Officers for review. After the approval of a history, or a part thereof, by the Board of Officers, that Board, when authorized by the Society, shall have the same published in a form determined by the Officers which may include (but shall not be limited to) electronic formats.

The Historian shall have charge of, and cause to be prepared, a "year book" which may cover more than one year's activities, and which shall be distributed to the members at such time, and in a form determined by the Officers.

ARTICLE V
BOARD OF OFFICERS

SEC. 1. The Board of Officers shall consist of the President, the First and Second Vice-Presidents, the Treasurer, the Secretary, the Almoner, and the Historian. The President shall be Chairman of this Board.

SEC.2. Except as provided in these Bylaws, the Board of Officers shall manage and control the property, affairs and concerns of the Society and may incur any necessary or proper expenses in connection therewith. The Board may from time to time authorize the employment of assistants to the Secretary and the Treasurer, whose compensation shall be fair and reasonable and shall be paid, as determined by the President, from the funds of the Society.

The Board shall approve the payment of all obligations of the Society, except as provided in these Bylaws.

SEC.3. The bonds of indemnity required of the Treasurer and Secretary shall be executed by a surety company or companies. Such bonds and any insurance policies issued to or held by the Society shall be approved by the Board of Officers and delivered to and kept in the possession of the President. The premiums for such bonds and insurance policies shall be borne by the Society.

SEC.4. The past Presidents of the Society shall be entitled to attend the meetings of the Board of Officers in an advisory capacity but shall have no vote.

SEC.5. Notice of meetings of the Board of Officers, stating the time, place and objects thereof, shall be given by the President or the Secretary by sending the same by first class mail to each member thereof at his residence or business address, or by delivering the same to him personally or by electronic mail to the address provided to the Society by such member, not less than two nor more than fifteen days before the meeting, but such notice may be waived in writing by any member thereof either before or after the meeting. Any Board member, or any Committee member, may participate in a meeting of such Board or Committee by means of a conference telephone or similar communications equipment which allows all persons participating in the meeting to hear each other at the same time. Participation by such means shall constitute presence in person at a meeting. Electronic mail is not permitted to participate or vote at Board or Committee meetings, but unanimous consents may be obtained by use of electronic mail.

SEC.6. A majority of the entire Board of Officers shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business or of any specified item of business. The vote of a majority of the members of the Board present at the time of the vote, if a quorum is present at such time, shall be the act of the Board.

SEC.7. Any action required or permitted to be taken by the Board of Officers may be taken without a meeting if all members of the Board consent in writing to the adoption of a resolution authorizing the action. The resolution and the written consents thereto by the members of the Board shall be filed with the minutes of the proceedings of the Board.

ARTICLE VI BOARD OF STEWARDS AND COMMITTEES

SEC. 1. There shall be constituted in the manner hereinafter provided, a Board of Stewards and the following standing Committees that shall advise and assist the Board of Officers in the management of the affairs of the Society: Committee on Admissions, Committee on Charity, Committee on Accounts and Committee on Finance.

Board of Stewards

SEC. 2. The Board of Stewards shall consist of not less than seven nor more than ten members to be appointed by the President, one of whom he shall designate as Chairman. The officers shall be members of the Board of Stewards, although they shall not be included in the membership limits.

SEC.3. The Society shall, unless the Board of Stewards determines otherwise, hold an anniversary meeting, and dine together on Saint Patrick's Day, except when Saint Patrick's Day falls on Saturday or Sunday or any other day which the Stewards determine presents an impediment, in which event the festivities may be observed on such other day in March as shall be specified by the Board of Stewards.

The Board of Stewards shall fix the price of tickets, arrange the toasts and select guests of the Society for the anniversary dinner, and otherwise supervise the conduct of the dinner.

SEC.4. The Board of Stewards shall arrange for and supervise all other social functions or gatherings of the Society.

SEC.5. The Board of Stewards shall regulate the admittance of guests to the meetings of the Society and maintain proper decorum and order.

Committee on Admissions

SEC. 6. The Committee on Admissions shall consist of not less than nine nor more than twelve members to be appointed by the President, one of whom he shall designate as Chairman. The President and Secretary shall be ex-officio members of this Committee.

The Committee shall have the powers and perform the duties devolved upon it under and set forth in these Bylaws.

Committee on Charity

SEC. 7. The Committee on Charity shall consist of not less than seven nor more than ten members to be appointed by the President, one of whom he shall designate as Chairman. The Officers shall also be members of this Committee.

The Society may, at a stated meeting, appropriate moneys from the funds of the Society to be disbursed for charitable purposes. The moneys so appropriated shall be allocated to such institutions or organizations as this Committee may determine and shall be disbursed by the Treasurer. The Treasurer shall report to the Society at a stated meeting the amounts disbursed to each institution or organization, or announce in a mailing to members that this data may be viewed at the Society's website or may be requested from the Society's offices.

Committee on Accounts

SEC. 8. The Committee on Accounts shall consist of not less than seven nor more than ten members to be appointed by the President, one of whom he shall designate as Chairman.

This Committee shall audit the accounts of the Treasurer and Secretary and it may examine the proceedings of the Board of Officers, Board of Stewards and the Committees with respect to finances. In connection with such audit, the Committee may retain an independent certified public accountant who shall receive reasonable and customary compensation as approved by such Committee and shall be paid by the Society. The accountant may not be a member of the Committee.

The reports of the Committee shall be submitted to the Board of Officers.

Committee on Finance

SEC. 9. The Committee on Finance shall consist of not less than three nor more than five members, other than officers to be appointed by the President, one of whom he shall designate as Chairman. The Committee shall be responsible for oversight of the investment of the Society's funds in accordance with an Investment Policy adopted by the Board of Officers. With the approval of the President of the Society, the Committee may engage investment advisory or investment management services, and the costs thereof may be paid from funds held in such investment accounts.

The Committee shall keep informed as to the securities held in the Capital Fund. The Committee shall, not less than annually, issue its report to the Board of Officers on the status and performance of the Capital Fund. The Committee shall oversee competent professional managers engaged by the Board of Officers, including the review and approval of short and long term investment strategy and asset allocation, and the establishment of performance standards for the investment managers, all consistent with the Investment Policy adopted by the Board of Officers and with applicable Federal and New York State Statutes and Regulations.

ARTICLE VII FUNDS OF THE SOCIETY

SEC. 1. The funds of the Society shall be kept in accounts designated as the (a) Capital Fund (previously known as the Permanent Fund), (b) General Fund (previously known as the Income Fund), and (c) such other temporary specific purpose Funds as may be approved by the Officers. The Capital Fund shall consist of the securities and moneys now in the Permanent Fund and the moneys referred to in Section 2 of this Article VII, to become a part of the Capital Fund. The General Fund shall consist of all moneys received by or for the Society not required to be placed in the Capital Fund.

SEC.2. The amounts received for Life Membership of the Society shall be contributed to the Capital Fund. The Board of Officers may utilize the Capital Fund for specific capital needs of the Society, or under exigent circumstances as determined by the Board of Officers in its sole discretion. The Board of Officers may determine that all or any part of the surplus income of the Society should be deposited in the Capital Fund. The income of the Society shall consist of initiation fees, dues, and the interest accruing from the investment of its Capital Fund.

SEC.3. Cash and securities in the Capital Fund shall be placed in a custodian or similar account in such bank, trust company or other similar entity preferably in the City of New York as the Board of Officers shall designate; they shall not be withdrawn from such bank, trust company, or other entity, except upon the written approval of two of the officers of the Society. The Board of Officers may also, in its discretion, hire a professional investment manager who may be given discretion to purchase or sell securities pursuant to an investment policy adopted by the Board of Officers. The professional investment manager shall be compensated, and such compensation shall be charged to the Capital Fund.

SEC.4. The moneys in the General Fund or other temporary specific purpose Funds, as provided in Section 1 of this Article VII, shall be deposited in such federally insured bank or trust company as the Board of Officers shall designate.

SEC.5. No indebtedness or obligation shall be incurred for the account of the Society other than under the authority of specific appropriation made by the Society or as approved by the Board of Officers or as provided in these Bylaws.

SEC.6. The fiscal year of the Society shall be from Saint Patrick's Day in one year to the day before Saint Patrick's Day next ensuing.

ARTICLE VIII

STATED MEETINGS OF THE SOCIETY

SEC. 1. The Society shall hold three stated meetings in each year, viz: on the first or second Monday following the second day of January; on the first Monday of May and on the second or third Monday of November, the last mentioned of which shall be considered the annual meeting of members. The President may alter a meeting date, consistent with the notices provisions in Sec 2 below, when unusual circumstances or conditions make the scheduled date inadvisable or inconvenient for the membership.

SEC.2. Each stated meeting of the Society shall be held at such hour and place as the Board of Officers shall designate by written notice given by first class mail or electronically to each member entitled to vote thereat not less than ten nor more than thirty days before the meeting.

SEC.3. One hundred fifty members or thirty percent (30%) of the total number of members in good standing (whichever is less) shall be necessary to constitute a quorum at any stated meeting of the Society, except as provided in these Bylaws.

SEC. 4. At each stated meeting the order of business shall be as follows:

- 1—Roll call
- 2—Reading minutes of the last meeting
- 3—Reports of officers and committees
- 4—Election of officers (November Meeting)
- 5—Unfinished business
- 6—New business

ARTICLE IX

SPECIAL MEETINGS OF THE SOCIETY

SEC. 1. The President shall call special meetings of the Society when, in his judgment, it is necessary and appropriate. It shall be the duty of the President to call special meetings at the written requests of 2/3rds of the Board of Officers, or upon a request signed by fifty members of the Society or thirty percent (30%) of the total number of members in good standing (whichever is less). Requests for special meetings shall be in writing, fully setting forth the purpose thereof. Written notice of each special meeting shall be given to each member entitled to vote thereat by first call mail or electronically and published on the web site given not less than ten nor more than fifty days before the date of the meeting and shall state the purpose or purposes for which the meeting is called.

SEC.2. At special meetings one hundred fifty members or thirty percent (30%) of the total number of members in good standing (whichever is less) shall be necessary to constitute a quorum

SEC.3. Special meetings shall be confined to the transaction of such business as is indicated in the notice of the meeting. No other business may be lawfully conducted.

ARTICLE X
AMENDMENTS TO BY LAWS

SEC.1. Suspension, repeal or amendment of any of the Bylaws of this Society shall be considered only when the proposal for such suspension, repeal or amendment shall have been submitted in writing at a previous stated meeting and a copy of such proposal shall have been incorporated in the notice of such meeting at which action upon the proposal is to be taken, provided that such notice must be a written or electronic notice sent at least 20 days in advance of the stated meeting with a blacklined version marked to show proposed changes to the Bylaws.

SEC.2. At any meeting where consideration is given to the adoption of any proposal for the suspension, repeal or amendment of any provision of these Bylaws, a resolution or motion for the adoption of any such proposal shall require a vote of the majority of the members present and entitled to vote.

ARTICLE XI
INDEMNIFICATION AND INSURANCE

SEC.1. Authorized Indemnification. Unless clearly prohibited by law or Section 2 of this Article XI, the Society shall indemnify any person (“Indemnified Person”) made, or threatened to be made, a party in any action or proceeding, whether civil, criminal, administrative, investigative or otherwise, including any action by or in the right of the Society, by reason of the fact that he or she (or his or her testator or intestate), whether before or after adoption of this Section, is or was a director or officer of the Society. The indemnification shall be against all judgments, fines, penalties, amounts paid in settlement (provided the Society shall have consented to such settlement) and reasonable expenses, including attorneys’ fees and costs of investigation, incurred by an Indemnified Person with respect to any such threatened or actual action or proceeding, and any appeal thereof.

SEC.2. Prohibited Indemnification. The Society shall not indemnify any person if a judgment or other final adjudication adverse to the Indemnified Person establishes, or the Board of Officers in good faith determines, that such person’s acts were committed in bad faith or were the result of active and deliberate dishonesty and were material to the cause of action so adjudicated or that he or she personally gained in fact a financial profit or other advantage to which he or she was not legally entitled.

SEC.3. Advancement of Expenses. The Society shall, on request of any Indemnified Person who is entitled to be indemnified by the Society, pay or promptly reimburse the Indemnified Person's reasonably incurred expenses in connection with an action or proceeding prior to its final disposition. However, no such advancement of expenses shall be made unless the Indemnified Person makes a binding, written commitment to repay the Society, with interest, for any amount advanced for which it is ultimately determined that he or she is not entitled to be indemnified under the law or Section 2 of this Article XI. An Indemnified Person shall cooperate in good faith with any request by the Society that common legal counsel be used by the parties to such action or proceeding that are similarly situated unless it would be inappropriate to do so because of actual or potential conflicts of interest between the parties.

SEC.4. Indemnification of Others. Unless prohibited by law or Section 2 of this Article XI, the Board of Officers may approve indemnification as set forth in Section 1 of this Article XI or advancement of expenses as set forth in Section 3 of this Article XI, to a person (or the testator or intestate of a person) who is or was employed by the Society or who is or was a volunteer for the Society, and who is made, or threatened to be made, a party in any action or proceeding, by reason of the fact of such employment or volunteer activity, including actions undertaken in connection with service at the request of the Society in any capacity for any other corporation, partnership, joint venture, trust, employee benefit plan or other enterprise.

SEC.5. Insurance. The Society may purchase insurance if authorized and approved by the Board of Officers. To the extent permitted by law, such insurance may insure the Society for any obligation it incurs as a result of this Article XI or operation of law and it may insure directly the directors, officers, employees or volunteers of the Society for liabilities against which they are not entitled to indemnification under this Article XI as well as for liabilities against which they are not entitled to be indemnified by the Society.

SEC.6. Nonexclusive Rights. The provisions of this Article XI shall not limit or exclude any other rights to which any person may be entitled under law or contract. The Board of Officers is authorized to enter into agreements on behalf of the Society with any director, officer, employee or volunteer, providing them rights to indemnification or advancement of expenses in connection with potential indemnification in addition to the provisions in this Article XI, subject in all cases to the limitations of Section 2 of this Article XI.

ARTICLE XII CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

SEC.1. Definition of Conflicts of Interest. A conflict of interest will be deemed to exist whenever an individual is in the position to approve or influence the Society's policies or actions which involve or could ultimately harm or benefit financially: (a) the individual; (b) any member of his/her immediate family (spouse, parents, children, brothers or sisters, and spouses of these individuals); or (c) any organization in which he, she or an immediate family member is a director, trustee, officer, member, partner or more than 10% shareholder. Service on the board of another not-for-profit corporation shall not constitute a conflict of interest.

SEC.2. Disclosure of Conflicts of Interest. An officer or committee member shall disclose a conflict of interest: (a) prior to voting on or otherwise discharging his/her duties with respect to any matter involving a conflict which comes before the Board or any committee thereof; (b) prior to entering into any contract or transaction involving a conflict; (c) as soon as possible after the director or officer learns of a conflict; and/or (d) on the annual conflict of interest disclosure form. The Secretary of the Society shall distribute annually, 30 days prior to the Annual Meeting of Directors, to all Directors, Officers, committee members, and key employees a form soliciting the disclosure of all conflicts of interest arising during the prior calendar year to date, including specific information concerning the terms of any contract or transaction with the Society and whether the process for approval set forth in Section 3 of this Article XII was satisfied.

SEC.3. Approval of Transactions Involving Potential Conflicts of Interest. A Director or Officer who has or learns about an actual or potential conflict of interest should disclose promptly to the Secretary of the Society the material facts surrounding such actual or potential conflict of interest, including specific information concerning the terms of any contract or transaction with the Society. All efforts should be made to disclose any such contract or transaction and have it approved by the Board before the arrangement is entered into. Following receipt of information concerning a contract or transaction involving a potential conflict of interest, the Board shall consider the material facts concerning the proposed contract or transaction including the process by which the decision was made to recommend entering into the arrangement on the terms proposed. The Board shall approve only those contracts or transactions in which (a) the terms are fair and reasonable to the Society and (b) the arrangements are consistent with the best interests of the Society. Fairness includes, but is not limited to, the concepts that the Society should pay no more than fair market value for any goods or services which the Society receives and that the Society should receive fair market value consideration for any goods or services that it furnishes to others. The Board shall set forth the basis for its decision with respect to approval of contracts or transactions involving conflicts of interest in the minutes of the meeting at which the decision is made, including the basis for determining that the consideration to be paid is fair to the Society.

SEC.4. Validity of Actions. No contract or other transaction between the Society and one or more of its directors or officers, or between the Society and any other corporation, firm, association or other entity in which one or more of its directors or officers are directors or officers, or have a substantial financial interest, shall be either void or voidable for this reason alone or by reason alone that such director or directors or officer or officers are present at the meeting of the Board of Officers, or of a committee thereof, which authorizes such contract or transaction, or that his/her or their votes are counted for such purpose, if the material facts as to such director's (or directors') or officer's (or officers') interest(s) in such contract or transaction were disclosed to the Board and the contract or transaction was thereafter approved by a vote sufficient for such purpose, counting the vote(s) of such interested director(s) or officer(s). Common or interested officers shall be counted in determining the presence of a quorum at a meeting of the Board of Officers or committee which authorizes such contract or transaction.

SEC.5. Employee Conflicts of Interest. An employee of the Society with a potential conflict of interest in a particular matter shall promptly and fully disclose the potential conflict to his/her supervisor. The employee shall thereafter refrain from participating in deliberations and discussions, as well as any decision, relating to the matter and follow the direction of the supervisor as to how decisions of the Society which are the subject of the conflict will be determined. The President shall be responsible for determining the proper way for the Society to handle decisions of the Society which involve unresolved employee conflicts of interest.

In making such determinations, the President may consult with legal counsel. The President shall report to the Board at least annually concerning employee conflicts of interest which have been disclosed and contracts and transactions involving employee conflicts which the President has approved.

ARTICLE XIII MISCELLANEOUS

SEC.1. A member may resign from the Society by tendering his resignation in writing. Such resignation, however, shall be accepted only upon the payment in full of his indebtedness to the Society.

SEC.2. Any member who commits or performs any act prejudicial to the best interest and reputation of the Society may, after a full and fair hearing before the Board of Officers, and on the recommendation of two-thirds of the members of such Board, be expelled by the Society.

SEC.3. At a stated or special meeting of the Society, the election of the Nominating Committee or of any officer or the adoption of a resolution or carrying of a motion shall require a majority of the members present and entitled to vote except as provided in these Bylaws.

SEC.4. The adoption of a resolution or carrying of a motion at a meeting of any Board or Committee except the Board of Officers shall require a majority vote of all the members of the respective Board or Committee.

SEC.5. Every member entitled to vote at a meeting of members, or to express consent or dissent without a meeting, may authorize another member or members to act for him by written proxy duly presented to the Secretary prior to the conduct of the business of the meeting. All references in these Bylaws to members present at a meeting shall include those present by proxy as well as those present in person.

SEC.6. These Bylaws shall be governed by, and interpreted in a manner consistent with the laws of the State of New York. In all questions involving the correct interpretation of these Bylaws the decision of the Board of Officers shall be final and conclusive.
